AN AUGUST EVENING.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,

BY E. B. H.

How gentle night unfolds her robe
Of stars—the golden dust of heaven—
And a sweet hush of calm repose,
To wearied man and earth is given.

The dewy zephyr, soft and cool,
Wooed in with breath of Paradise,
Comes floating from the orange grove,
Exiling fragrance as it flies.

The rustling vine flutters above me,
Like fairy hand waving into life,
And cherubim pulse round his bower,
Waiting to unfold his farewell kiss.

The mocker here his riddle by,
Pours from the midst of evening gush,
And every leaflet quivers for full
Of rest and quiet o'er the plain.

The shrieking serpent on yonder plain
The crescent shades very deftly pry,
Or searching, for the wandering fawn,
In quiet shun the beast past by.

The placid moon now trims her lamp,
And lights a world to darkness true;
While myriad stars come softly forth,
Each with the other's glory vieing.

Through the thick foliage of the trees
Their mirrory beams the fairy pass,
Making, with lightly curvèd leaves,
Fantastic figures on the grass.

From the dim shades of dewy wood,
Comes the voice of cricket's bird,
Calling his absent mate to rest:
And now the answer lyrist is heard.

Most hour of rest! oh, whose the man
Such holy nature should not woo
With blessèd balm of sin and crime,
Or blind the sin with words profane.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE CLAUSE IN THE WILL.

Mr. Raymond Garton's sanctum was a little room at the very top of the house, in St. John's Wood. No banker's strong room was ever more carefully guarded than the small apartment honored by the name of "Mr. Garton's study."

The small window was double glazed and shut out all sound, and the thick green baize-covered door was supplemented by an inner one of iron, of cunning workmanship and enormous strength.

Yet it is a question whether the heavy bureau at the end of the room and the securely locked drawers at the bottom of the small book-case, contained a single valuable worthy the attention of a single burglar; but these drawers contained certain papers and documents which Mr. Raymond Garton would rather have buried beside him in his coffin at that present moment, than open to the gaze of the curious world.

Many a plot and schemer of the ever busy brain was spread out by all its elaborate villainy upon the two sheets of paper lying snugly at rest within the morocco-lined drawer.

Here, in dead silence in the little room, divided from the rest of the house, by a staircase, alive and peopled by the master of the house, Raymond Garton sat sitting a few days after the scene at Carleton Villa. With elbows resting on the writing-table and hands linked against his forehead, he was slowly unreeling a scroll of parchment lying between his arms.

The scroll of parchment was a copy of James Garton's will, and from the terms of this document the tireless brain was spinning out a plot that should turn the golden stream of James Garton's money from its rightful owner, Lilian, into the white claws of Raymond Garton.

For several hours the figure at the table remained motionless—still staring at the parchment, and in opening the book with a cat-like movement, the three hands loosened their clasp of the will formed forehead and fell upon the document, leaving the face uncovered, a handsome face still, although the mask was laid aside, and the eyes, usually soft and smiling, were glittering severely with the lust of gold, and deep lines were graved about the mouth.

The plot was worked out, and the scheme lay before his mind's eye as clearly and distinctly as the map that hung against the wall.

"Nine! nine!" he muttered, involuntarily clutching the scroll in his claw-like hands and raising it above his head. "There can be no fear, there shall be none! Old dotard! to think that Raymond Garton would rest tightly and not stretch out his hand to grasp at the gold that should have been his! Aye, his!" he repeated, passionately, as if in awe or to some unseen voice, though only his almost deafened audience spoke.

"Fifty! What should a mile-and-chick of a girl do with so much money? What, save spend it in the worthless toys of old China, save waste it on some shallow-witted fool whom she may think she loves; while I—Oh, heaven! how I long to hold it now—will use it well. I am tired of this life of shame and toil!" he continued, fiercely clenching as the roll still, and clenching his mind with Scottish caparison. "Tired of every part of it, tired of wearing a mask for fools; weary of the light which betrays so little and cares so much. Two in the last venture, and it is a noble one, though the risk is great. What care I for risk? Kismet, Kismet, all is fate, and fate will not fail me. Everything goes well; Lilian suspects nothing—and half loves the young artist now, and he—"

And a smile of insatiable contempt broke on his haggard face.

"A mere boy, proud of his birth and handsome face, grateful as and innocent as a girl, he cannot stay was ever dreamed. Ah! if all goes well," he continued, pressing into a chair and once more hiding his face in his hands; "if all goes well, I will a sweeter reward still; love and revenge! Cold-blooded beast!" he cried, striking the table as if it were nothing less and tasked. "Have you forgot, Sir Arthur, if I do not pay you back with bitter interest, back words and threats? Did God your secret if I have to die on a dunghill? I'll find your secret if I have to die on a dunghill! I'll find your secret if I have to die on a dunghill! I'll find your secret if I have to die on a dunghill!

NOTICE.

☞ CORRESPONDENTS, advertisers, and all others writing in relation to matters connected with this or any other department of the CLIPPER, are respectfully requested to address their favors to the editor and proprietor, and thereby avoid omissions, mistakes and confusion which are likely to occur when such communications are addressed to our assistants.

NOTICE.

ADVERTISERS must hand in their favors before 6 o'clock on Monday evening, in order to have them appear in that week's issue.

To Correspondents.

NARRAGANSETT, Bridgewater, Mass.—The striker had no right to attempt to make second base until he had re-touched first base after overrunning first base, and had he been touched by the ball, in the hands of a fielder, before he had so re-touched first base he was out. The umpire was wrong. The privilege accorded in the rule is simply that of being allowed to return to the base without being put out, and not that the base runner has the option of returning and touching the base or not. Were this the right interpretation of the rule, what is there to prevent the striker every time he overruns the first base from turning to his left and running half way down to second base first.

EXPERIENCE ASPIRANT, Memphis, Tenn.—1. You will, no doubt, be able to obtain a position to play utility. Apply to some manager of a theatre in person, or to the manager of a traveling company; or, apply to some dramatic agency in Chicago, Ill. 2. The salary you would receive would of course support you if you live in an economical manner.

A. F. W., Washington, D. C.—Your partner having assisted at euchre, you could not play it alone; neither could you, after all had passed, and your partner had made the trump. No one can play a lone hand at regular euchre except he who makes, takes, or orders up the trump. All other modes of play are irregular, and should be agreed upon before commencing.

RACE HORSES, Memphis.—Decidedly so. It is a matter of opinion which country produces the finest draught horses, some claiming the Hungarian breed, some the Percheron, others the English, etc. 2. The rule of 1,760 yards governs the measurement of all race courses.

A Subscriber, Albany.—We do not know!

M. B., Camden, N. Y.—If the Secretary of the Buffalo Driving Park Association decided that Goldsmith Maid trotted three heats in 1869, at Buffalo, in 2:19¾; 2:19¾, he decided a fact, and you are entitled to the money staked. Her time was, as you state it, 2:19¾; 2:19¾; 2:19¾.

A SUBSCRIBER, Worcester.—A was right in moving from 3 to 2 point, and was not compelled to move from the 6 to 5 point, which would only result in making an "ace move." According to your plan of the game, A could have moved from 4 to 3, and from 3 to 2, but nothing further.

KEARSARGE, Stoneham, Mass.—Walter Brown went to England to play cricket, when he defeated Bill Sadler, easily, on the Tyne, and was obliged, through illness, to forfeit to Joe Sadler (of the Taylor-Winship crew), and effected a match with the late James Renforth, which, however, fell through.

BIRD DOG.—The player who had a substitute running for him was put out at first base. The play not having been marked by the completion of five innings, was no game. The umpire could not give the game to either side unless one had refused to play on.

C. B., Wyoming, Pa.—As the umpire is the sole judge of fair and unfair play, and if he decides that it is light enough to play, the party refusing to play forfeits the game. You must stand the loss of partial umpiring, and learn the lesson not to select that man as umpire.

C. G. H., Meriden, Conn.—The College of Pharmacy, this city, is located at the University, foot of East 26th street, we are informed. A letter to Mr. William Hegeman, the president, so addressed, will reach him.

J. D. Mc., Trenton.—The rule is very plain. C is the next striker, not D. It makes no difference as to the order of a player's being put out, the man next on the list to the player who was third hand striker, becomes the next striker in the order.

E. C., Iowa Falls.—Twenty miles have been trotted inside of an hour by Capt. McGowan, John Stewart, Trustee and Lady Fulton. The best time is 58:25, made by Capt. McGowan, in harness, Boston, Oct. 31, 1865.

W. H. C., Tipton, Mo.—A horse having won a 3 min. purse cannot enter again in a similar purse. If, however, he was entered for the second purse before he won the first, he was eligible to trot for it.

R. C. K., Memphis, Tenn.—1. London, England, has a population of two millions and a half, and Pekin, China, of less than two millions. 2. Your three queens beat the three spades, which is not considered a flush.

H. W., Pittsburgh, Pa.—1. Miss Charlotte Cushman has played Romeo in this country many times; it is one of her most celebrated roles. 2. Miss Susan Cushman, a sister, often played with her in this country, especially in Scotland.

AGNES ANNE, Brooklyn, L. I.—1. G. W. Moore, one of the managers of the Christy Minstrels now performing in London, Eng., is an American. 2. Mert Sexton was not the original of the Essence of Virginia. Cannot say where he was born.

J. B. A.—At cribbage, when the cards are played as follows:—9, 4, 6, 2, 5, 3, 1, the player of the trey is entitled to a sequence of five, and the player of the ace a sequence of six, besides one for a "go."—It should be.

UNION.—Having consented to your playing your nine, as it is, in two games, they cannot legally object to it now, and you can therefore claim the title justly.

P. E., Quincy, Ill.—The umpire correctly decided the game forfeited 9 to 0 in favor of the Westerns, and those betting on the success of that nine won.

T. J. L., South Carolina.—The first match was won by the Mutuals, 8 to 7; the second by the Athletics, 5 to 4. The third was played on Aug. 26th.

H. H. H.—The play was a triple one, viz., one on the fly and two on the bases, provided the ball was held on the bases before the player returned to them.

J. B. B., Chicago—1. Philadelphia's population in 1870 was 674,022. 2. St. Louis stands fourth in the extent of population, numbering in 1870, 310,993, and Chicago, fifth, with 298,977.

J. L., Fort Wayne, Ind.—1. Manhattanville is on Manhattan Island, and therefore a part of the city of New York. 2. The table in general use in both countries is the same.

GREENVILLE, Pa.—1. Time made on a short track goes on the record. 2. Send 50 cents to E. James, 88 Centre street, N. Y., for the rules.

LA PORT, Washington.—1. Creighton ruptured himself by batting on a leg ball in a match at cricket between the St. George and Willow clubs at Hoboken, N. J. Levy gets $200 a week salary.

LEATHER STOCKING, Lancaster, Pa.—A bet on the match, and he loses or wins according as the side he bet on lost or won in the game played.

HARVARD, '74.—Glenelg first ran in public when a thr ee year old, in a match for $1,000, against Rapture, at Jerome Park, June 2, 1871. He is now 5 years old.

LONE HANDED, Ann Arbor.—Your aces win; it requires five cards to constitute a flush. 2. The game is a draw. 3. We do not know what you mean by California ruling.

WASHINGTON.—A can demand a sight for the $5 he has on the board, and the same for $5 he has, and B must allow $10 to remain down against A's $10.

D. C., Hamilton.—Goldsmith Maid was raised in Orange county, N. Y., and sired by Goldsmith's Volunteer, a son of Ryedick's Messenger.

SUBSCRIBER, Worcester.—C goes out first. B could not count his points for best trump with the king until the hand was played out, for how could he know but that his opponent held a higher trump?

Reader, Jr., Baltimore.—The party with three aces has no claim upon the player who offered to go partners in his hand; such offer being conditional on his playing the hand.

HENRY, Galena, Ill.—Patsy Reardon arrived in New York from England, Jan. 23d, 1868. He died at St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 27th, of the present year.

H. M., Watertown, Wis.—For a first effort it is very clever, but as we have more poetry than we can find room for, we respectfully decline it.

THIRTY-FIFTH STREET.—In euchre only one lone hand can be played—by the man who makes, takes, or orders up the trump. A euchre only counts two points under any circumstances.

C. B., Wyoming, Pa.—As B has won both bets, the amount to cover A's $20, it was proof conclusive that he had more than that amount, therefore he (B) won.

W. F. C., Bridgewater, Conn.—The Athletics are first on the list of the Chicago nine second, and the Bostons third.

STARBRIDGER.—The bets go by the decision of the umpire. B wins.

C. T. S.—Neither of the Wrights ever belonged to the Athletic or Alhambic clubs.

N. J. K., St. Louis.—As the question is subject to both constructions, we would advise a drawn bet.

N. C. R. K.—The CLIPPER is the authority. The reasons for our decisions have been given frequently.

C. R. L.—1. Ha field is the champion distance thrower in base ball. 2. The Eckfords have paid their fee and entered.

P. R. R.—The highest score of the 3 nines in the match.

E. C. D., Philadelphia.—Thirty-two is an average throw.

COMEDIAN, Brooklyn.—We don't know.

THE LOW COMEDIAN.—It will be used.

FURMER.—It was applied to White.

FUNNY, Bridgeport.—Accepted.

PICTURE.—Our charges are $50.

STAKEHOLDER.—Yes.

THE PHILADELPHIA "SUNDAY MERCURY," which has been making rapid progress in popular favor during the past four or five years, is now one of the best papers published in the Quaker City, its various departments, religious, political, sporting, etc., being in the keeping of gentlemen ably qualified for the positions they occupy, while the general conduct of the paper gives evidence that a master hand is at the helm. The Mercury of Sunday, Aug. 27th, which appeared in a complete suit of new type, was printed, for the first time, on its new Bullock press, manufactured to order by I. P. Morris & Co., of that city, which gives unmistakeable token of the Mercury's prosperity and popularity. We congratulate Messrs. Wm. Meeser & Co., on the success which has attended their steady, unceasing efforts to produce a live, spicy and independent paper.

CROWDED OUT.—Owing to the important sporting events nearer home we are compelled to omit from this issue our foreign theatrical news, our usual record of deaths, &c., much to our regret, and, perhaps, to not a few of our readers, who, however, will readily perceive the force of circumstances on perusal.

RENFORTH'S DEATH.

The lamentable ending to what promised to be a very interesting contest between celebrated oarsmen of England and America, has naturally created a deep feeling of sympathy for the family of Renforth, and his companions in the struggle of Aug. 23d. On the first page of this issue of the CLIPPER, we have given a pretty accurate likeness of the late champion sculler of England, accompanied with a biographical sketch of his life and doings, and elsewhere in the same paper will be found complete details of the unfortunate match in which Renforth lost his life. The death of Renforth while engaged in a desperate effort to forge his boat ahead has afforded the daily press of the country an opportunity to condemn athletic exercises of a severe nature, and to caution the youth of the country against indulging in any sport which requires such training and hard work as Renforth seems to have undergone in his boating experience. We do not regard this as a fair test, however; for Renforth, if the facts are correctly stated, seems to have been subject to fainting spells, or fits, one witness on the coroner's inquest stating that he, Renforth, when excited, was subject to apoplectic fits, having had five in five years of rowing. If such was truly the case, then Renforth acted unwisely in engaging in such contests as that which terminated in his death. In fact, he should have abstained from boat racing altogether, for with his temperament he was liable at any moment of violent physical exercise to be stricken down. Why, even strong mental excitement has killed thousands of those liable to apoplexy; in the case of Renforth, however, he was laboring under both mental and physical excitement, and was a fit subject for the attack which carried him off; he was the leading spirit in the fatal match of the 23d—it was his head that planned the conditions of the match on the part of the Tyne crew, and it was to his strong arm that his companions looked for that extra effort which should be the signal for one desperate struggle on their part. His plans up to the day of the race had been carefully and systematically carried out, and his crew had been the favorites in the betting up to the moment when the time for action arrived. Notwithstanding the reports of the excellent work doing by the St. John men, and the fast time said to have been made by them, Renforth was still very confident, and, seemingly, unconcerned; dancing a jig just before the start, in his apparent exuberance, which may have been to infuse confidence in his own crew. After the start, and when the two crews were moving along with but little difference in their speed, then it was that the lamented Renforth, with "soul and body on the action," nerved himself for one crushing spurt; but vitality was wanting to second his endeavors, his arms fell powerless at his side, and his prostrate form told the sad tale, of defeat and death, to his horror-stricken companions.

Close training such as athletes undergo when preparing for any important contest is by no means such easy work as many persons imagine it to be; some of the most successful pugilists the world ever produced have asserted, time and again, that they would sooner fight a dozen times over than undergo one course of close, systematic training. In fact, it is too severe to be lasting in its favorable results, and we find that many of those who go through half a dozen courses of right training become enervated and "stale" before they have reached that period of life when man is supposed to be in his prime, and die when they are comparatively young men. But one great cause of this premature physical degeneracy may be found in the fact that when once the training is completed, and the end for which they trained accomplished, the athletes at once launch forth upon a career of dissipation—eating and drinking everything to excess, keeping late hours, oftentimes not seeing their beds for several days—living in promiscuous intercourse with women who are ever ready and willing to dispense their favors lavishly to celebrities of this sort, the whole culminating in sickness which requires the utmost skill of the most eminent physicians to avert a suddenly fatal issue. Here is where our athletes do wrong, and these after proceedings afford the proper clue to the early decease of so many of our pugilists and other sporting celebrities. Nature cannot stand such wholesale dissipation and disregard of her laws, and he who should, by a proper attention to the commands of nature, be a physical giant, becomes, by a violation of those commands, a pigmy, a wreck, before he has attained half the allotted years of mankind. If, instead of dropping all proper exercises, the athlete would continue to devote daily a certain portion of his time to keeping his system in good condition by moderate exercise, and abstaining from all excesses, we should have no better specimen of physical manhood than the athlete. Until we have some such reforms we cannot look for long lives among our sporting celebrities. We do not say that Renforth was one of the kind we have alluded to; on the contrary, we have been given to understand that he was a man of temperate habits, but being of an excitable nature, and at the same time subject to apoplectic attacks, he risked his life every time he entered upon a course of severe training, and in a match of such importance as that of the 23d, when the formidable character of his opponen's became apparent to him, the chances were all against his surviving the struggle. His death affords a lesson which others—not sporting men only—may profit by.

Intimations have been thrown out that Renforth was drugged, or "dosed," as they call it; and some remarks said to have been made by Renforth in his last moments of consciousness would appear to give a certain air of authenticity to these rumors, but such suspicions are erroneous; let us believe that the boating fraternity are not so lost to all manhood as to resort to such measures to gain supremacy in sporting events. When John C. Heenan was defeated by King, in England, a few years ago, it was rumored that the American had been drugged, and there were some strong circumstances pointing in that direction, but nothing of a definite character was ever arrived at as to the alleged "dosing," and the matter was permitted to drop. That there are speculators, or betting men, wicked enough to dose a man to accomplish their ends, we readily believe, but that the death of Renforth can be traced to such agencies, is not to be credited.

"OUR JIM" wants to know whether the New York Times, in its attack upon the city administration, expects to make "the Ring," as it calls it, solve the problem of "squaring" the outside circle.

ANOTHER MAN has been added to the force at work on the new post office, and the proceedings are not so monotonous to the looker on as formerly.

NEWS OF THE WEEK BOILED DOWN.

☞ The cyclone which recently passed along the southern coast has done much damage, and a telegram dated Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 29th, reports the following wrecks in addition to those dated Lodona. The brig Pomona, of Richmond, Me., on a shore south of Cape Canaveral, Aug. 17th; the brig R and W. Welsh, of Philadelphia, ashore, cargo lost and Capt. Watson drowned; the brig H. G. Berry, ashore and total loss; the brig Robert Hilda, from New Orleans, ashore, a total loss and one man drowned.

☞ A terrible railroad accident occurred at Revere, seven miles from Boston, Mass., on Aug. 26th. The Bangor express, which left Boston at 5 P. M., ran into a Boston and Maine excursion train, which was stopping at Revere, and the engine telescoped into the hindmost car and set the train on fire. Twenty-four were killed and between thirty and forty persons wounded.

☞ The Tilton Post (N. H.) held their annual picnic at Sylvan Park, Morrisania, N. Y., on the 24th inst., at which was quite a brilliant and orderly assembly of ladies and gentlemen, and Apollo and Terpsichore were ardently worshipped to a late hour. Among the prominent guests were Generals Sigel and Barnum, and Col. Marshall.

☞ Count Luigi Corti, the Italian Ambassador to Washington, has been chosen by the governments of Great Britain and the United States as the third arbitrator, under the treaty of Washington, upon all questions which are not comprised in the Alabama claims.

☞ A passenger and freight train collided on the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad, at Westport, Pa., on August 26th. R. C. Brown, of Lookhaven; Mr. Ward, of Bolleforte; Mr. Rubbright, of St. Mary's; Hyman, conductor; McCormick, engineer; and a Breman, name unknown, were killed.

☞ The body of a young woman, apparently about 18 years of age, who appeared to have been the victim of an abortion, was found packed in a trunk checked for Chicago at the Hudson River Railroad depot, in this city, on Aug. 26th.

☞ Daniel Meinge (or Mainge), of Philadelphia, Pa., on Aug. 26th, from the effects of a stab received the previous day at the hands of an intoxicated man, who was beating a man named Costello, when McGrath interfered. The assailant escaped.

☞ Germany is beginning to distrust the power of the Versailles government to fulfill its obligations, in consequence of the continual disagreements in the Assembly, and all the members of that body are reported to be speculating with their bonds.

☞ The Archbishop of Madrid has issued a circular to the clergy, in which he requires them to refuse the sacrament to persons married only by civil rite, and announces that, unless public repentance is made, all such marriages will be considered concubinage.

☞ The body of James Slinery, of Matteawan, N. Y., was found on the Harlem Railroad track, near Millerton, on Aug. 25th, with the head cut off, and as $100 was missing from his person, foul play is suspected.

☞ Henry Darby, aged 16, and his sister, aged 18, while crossing the track of the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad, in a buggy, about 9 miles from Cincinnati O., on Aug. 26th, were run into by a train, when the boy was killed and the girl fatally injured.

☞ The steamer Londona, which left this port for New Orleans, on Aug. 17th, was wrecked last week off the coast of Florida, and seventy persons drowned. The ship and cargo were valued at $300,000.

☞ Mrs. Colburn, who was accused of poisoning her former husband, Buffenbarger, at Columbus, O., and whose case has excited considerable interest for some days past, was honorably discharged on Aug. 29th.

☞ We are informed by a telegram dated St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 29th, that on July 27th, fifty Indians attacked a party of eight while men, thirty miles south of Cheyenne, and killed three and captured three of the party.

☞ Advices dated City of Mexico, Aug. 18th, state that a great riot had occurred at Morelia, in which many persons were killed and wounded. The imprisonment of a catholic priest, who had preached an intolerant sermon, led to the disturbance.

☞ Extensive floods have destroyed the agricultural produce in southern Hungary, and great misery prevails there in consequence of the devastation and of the excessive severity of the government in collecting the arrears of taxes.

☞ Berlin, Prussia, advices of August 23d report four cases of cholera in that city, and another telegram of the same date informs us that a ship had arrived at Shields, England, with cholera on board.

☞ A resolution was adopted by the Board of Aldermen of this city, on Aug. 22d, directing the municipal authorities to take proceeding to recover the land known as the Brick Church property, upon which the World and Times buildings stand.

☞ Felix Darcy killed his wife by cutting her throat and then cut his own throat from ear to ear, at his residence in East Fifteenth street, this city, on Aug. 26d, while laboring under temporary insanity.

☞ A telegram dated Vienna, Aug. 23d, says that it is semi-officially stated that the meeting between the emperors of Austria and Germany has been postponed to some future time, the date of which is not yet been arranged.

☞ The new United States loan of $75,000,000 was introduced in London, Paris, Berlin, Frankfort, Amsterdam, Hamburg and Brussels on Aug. 22d, and telegraphic advices inform us that it was all subscribed for on that day.

☞ A committee of conservative Catholics has invited the Catholics of Germany, Austria and Switzerland to a congress to be held at Munich, on Sept 23d.

☞ Augustus Pierce, a brakeman, residing in Matteawan, N. Y., was run over and killed on the Dutchess and Columbia Railroad on Aug. 24th.

☞ The British Parliament was prorogued on Aug. 31st until November 7th. The Queen's speech was of a commendatory and congratulatory nature.

☞ The Waverley House, ex-Gov. Packer's residence, the Mulberry street church, and over thirty other buildings were destroyed by fire at Williamsport, Pa., on Aug. 20th. Loss, $200,000.

☞ The next Legislature of Kentucky will stand as follows:—House, 59 Democrats, 18 Republicans; Senate, 25 Democrats, 8 Republicans.

☞ A negro was knocked overboard from a canal boat near Georgetown, D. C., by a man named Ward, on Aug. 21st, and drowned.

☞ The French Assembly Committee on the Budget has agreed to fix the salary of President Thiers at 500,000 francs, with a credit for ordinary expenses and presents.

☞ The Beethoven centenary celebration, which was postponed last year on account of the war, was observed with imposing ceremonies at Bonn, the birthplace of the composer, on Aug. 19th.

☞ Five Blocks of buildings on Aurora, Green and South Tioga streets, and the Ithaca Hotel, at Ithaca, N. Y., were burned on Aug. 22d. Loss, $100,000.

GARNIER VS. DALEY.—Maurice Daly, of this city, responds as follows to the challenge of Albert Garnier:—In your last edition I noticed a challenge from Albert Garnier to myself, stating that he would play me a four-ball game of billiards, for $250, at the Academy of Music. Mr. Garnier would profit more by he were to play in New York or Brooklyn. I propose to play him in either of the last mentioned places for $500; or if that does not suit Mr. Garnier, I will arrange to play the two matches, home and home, for $250 or $500 per game. Should Mr. Garnier accept the first named game, will allow him for traveling expenses. Hoping this will meet with a favorable response, I remain yours, &c.,

CHAMPIONSHIP OF NEW JERSEY.—There is to be a tournament among the Jersey players, to decide the championship of the state. It will probably be inaugurated in October.

GOOD FOR THAT KIND OF GAME.—At Congress Hall, Cape May, a day or two ago, Edward J. Plunkett, the Pennsylvania champion, made a run of 50 at the three-ball game.

THE CANADIAN CHAMPIONSHIP.—Frank Dion arrived here on Sept. 2, or that old two brothers, Joseph and Cyrille, who had been exhibitioning in Saratoga.

THE GREAT FOUR-OARED RACE

BETWEEN THE

PARIS CREW, OF ST. JOHN, N. B.,

AND THE

TYNE CREW, OF ENGLAND,

FOR THE

Championship of the World and £500 a side.

Rowed on the Kennebeccasis River, N.B., August 23d, 1871.

RENFORTH FAINTS AWAY AND HIS CREW WITHDRAW.

The Paris Crew Row Over Alone, Making the Six Miles in 39:20 3-5.

DEATH OF THE ENGLISH CHAMPION.

Post Mortem Examination and Coroner's Inquest.

The first of the three great boating events of the present season in American waters is now among the things that were. We allude to the International four-oared match, for £500 a side, between the celebrated Paris crew, of St. John, N. B., and the four captained by James Renforth, champion of England, which came off over a six mile course on the Kennebeccasis river, a few miles from S. John, on the morning of Wednesday, August 23d. The result was the victory of the provincial crew, but, unfortunately, the circumstances connected with the contest were such as to render less bright than they would otherwise have been the laurels won. Renforth, the stroke oar of the crew from across the water, fainted away ere one-sixth of the distance had been pulled over, and the crew were completed to give up the race, the St. John men continuing over the course, which they completed in the very quick time of 39:20 3-5. Below will be found full particulars of the match from inception to close, together with an account of the sad death of Renforth from congestion of the lungs, superinduced by excitement and exertion, commencing with a sketch of the rival oarsmen:—

THE ST. JOHN CREW.

ROBERT FULTON, the stroke of the New Brunswick men, is a stalwart, wiry, powerful man, raw-boned and determined in appearance, serving to the contrary notwithstanding. He is of medium height, of fair build, with pugilistic features and high forehead—such a man as any one would place confidence in if engaged in any description of sport requiring the possession of muscle and endurance. He has been the mainstay of the crew as now formed, and the people of St. John are evidently who take an interest in boating think that, as a stroke oarsman, there is no one who can compare with "Long Bob," as he is familiarly called. He was born at St. John twenty-seven years ago, stands five feet ten inches in height, and weighs 160 pounds in ordinary condition, 154 lbs. He is by occupation a fisherman. He pulled his first race some nine years ago, and has rowed four single his stay. Brafforth's body will be sent to England per steamer, the Committee of the Race on the Kennebecasis, we believe, defraying all expenses.

CRUISE OF THE NEW YORK YACHT CLUB CLOSED.—An informal meeting of the members of the New York Yacht Club was held on board the flagship Dauntless, at Newport, on the 27th of August. It was agreed to sail for the Newport Cup on Monday, August 28th, and close the annual cruise on the 29th. A letter from Commodore Ashbury, transmitting the challenge of twelve English yacht clubs to race for the Queen's Cup of 1851, was also forwarded and invited, when a resolution was adopted recommending the club to sail a series of twelve races with the Livonia, as the representative of the Royal Harwich Yacht Club only, the challenge of that club being the only one accepted by the New York club, the victory in a majority of the races to decide the possession of the cup. The second race was postponed until October 2d, to be sailed from Sandy Hook to Newport and back. The two challenge cups—the "Schooner Cup" and the "Ocean Cup." It was agreed, are to be held as challenge cups, but the challenging yacht shall deposit the value of the cup, which, in case of the original holder proving victorious, shall be devoted to the purchase of a piece of plate to become the bona fide property of the aforesaid original holder; but that in case the challenger prove victorious, the money with be returned to him, and he will then be subject to be challenged on the same conditions.

THE LORILLARD CUP RACE.—On Friday, Aug. 25th, three yachts of the New York Yacht Club, the Dreadnaught, Sappho and Madgie, competed for the cup given by Mr. Louis Lorillard, of the Wanderer, off Newport, R. I. The course was from Brenton's Reef Lightship to Block Island, thence to the Vineyard-Sound Lightship, and back to place of starting. Flying Jib must be carried on the mainsail in nine hours, or no race. At 1.51 they started, and the Sappho and Dreadnaught had a close race to Block Island buoy, which the Sappho rounded at 4.36 and the Dreadnaught at 4.37. The Madgie gave up the race and returned to Newport. From Block Island to the Vineyard Sound Lightship, twenty-six miles, the race was close between the Sappho and Dreadnaught. The Sappho rounded at 8.38, the Dreadnaught at 8.9:15. The return to Brenton's Reef was also close work, as the wind died away, thus preventing the race from being sailed in the specified time. The Sappho arrived home at eight minutes past 12, and the Dreadnaught at fifteen minutes past 12.

THE NEWPORT CUP RACE.—On Saturday, Aug. 26th, the race for the cup presented by the citizens of Newport, R. I. was attempted by the schooners Alarm, Madgie, Palmer, Tidal Wave, Dauntless, Columbia and Sappho. Within an hour after starting a dead calm prevailed and a dense fog set in. The affair now became a mere drift, and a light breeze springing up the yachts wisely made their way back to Newport, and thus ended the race for the Newport Cup. The schooners Columbia and Dreadnaught will both accept the Sappho's challenge to "any yacht in America," for a thirty mile to windward race and return, for a $1,000 cup. These races will be sailed the latter part of September, when interesting and exciting yachting displays are anticipated, as a ten knot breeze is stipulated for.

REGATTA ON LAKE DUNDER.—This pleasant sheet of water, near Paterson, N. J., was the scene of the annual rowing contest of the Harper's Moral Agricultural Association, on Friday afternoon, August 25th. There were two single scull races in shells. The first race was won by E. B. Atterbury, jr.; the second race was won by W. G. Oakman. A four-oared shell and a four-cared gig race followed. The first was gained by the following crew:—Messrs. B. W. Housey, Wm. Strange, H. G. Campbell and J. H. Hopper. The race resulted as follows: 1st boat, Messrs. Newton, jr., J. H. Hopper, A. W. Hoffman and Morton Clark. A double scull race was won by Messrs Morton Clark and E. B. Atterbury, jr. Distance and time not named in any of the races.

HALIFAX AND SARATOGA.—The great regatta at Halifax occurs during the present week, on Aug. 29th, 30th and 31st. The four-oared champion Tyro crew, which has the champion shell and the single scull on Thursday, both of which will undoubtedly prove splendidly-contested and exceedingly interesting events. The death of the gallant Renforth has cast a gloom over the affair, and lessened its interest not a little. The Halifax-Wanderer crew are the favorites in the betting, but the time shown by the St. Johners will ensure them plenty of backers. The other crews will be the late Renforth crew, with Chambers as stroke, the Coulter crew, and three from Nova Scotia.

BASE BALL.

ATHLETICS VS. FOREST CITYS.—The Athletics this afternoon (of Monday, Aug. 28th, the day of our going to press) defeated the Forest City, of Rockford, 7 to 10, at Philadelphia. Only seven innings were played on account of the late hour of commencing. This completes the series between these two clubs, the Athletics having now won three championship series, so we are informed by a special telegram.

CHICAGO vs. MUTUAL.

CHICAGO WINS THE SERIES.

The fourth and deciding game of the championship series between the above clubs, took place on the Union ground, L. I., on Monday, Aug 28th, in the presence of about 5,000 people, the result, after a closely contested game, being in favor of Chicago.

THE GAME.

Play was called at 3:35 P. M. by Mr. Young, of the Olympic Club, of Washington, the Chicago club sending in Duffy to the bat. The latter opened with an easy ball to Patterson and retired, and, but for a bad muff by Pearce, Wood would have been second out at first. Wood afterwards had a life given him by Start's failure to field a foul ball to Wolters in time, and by a high throw of Miller to Higham he had a life given him at second. Tracy was third striker, and by a hit to Ferguson he was disposed of at first. McAtee was next, and he hit a ball to Wolters, who muffed it; Ferguson picked the ball up nicely, but, throwing it to Start rather wide, McAtee had a life, Wood coming in on the hit. Simmons then put a safe bounder past third, and earned his base. Before another run could be scored, however, Foley hit a high fly which Mills attended to, and the other side went to the bat. Zettlein opened his batting on the Mutes in lively style; Hatfield, the first striker, being a victim to Woods and McAtee. Patterson, however, managed to earn his first, after which Start hit a high fly, which Treacy attended to on the fly prettily, Patterson being still left at first, although he had two passed balls to run on. Wolters was fourth striker, and the "Charmer" gave him his base on called balls, on which Patterson, too, went to second. Eggler was next, and after hitting some fouls he hit a turfcutter to left field on which each advanced a base; but before a run could be scored Mills hit a high foul, which was well caught by Hodes and the innings closed with a whitewash for the New York nine.

Pinkham opened the 2d innings with a safe bounder to centre field, and as Hodes followed with a high one to left, which fell safe, two men took earned bases. By Zettlein's hit to Higham the first man was put out at first, and so Duffy copied Zettlein in short hitting. Start captured another prisoner, Ferguson throwing the ball well. Wood also followed Duffy, and hitting to Ferguson, closed the innings with a simple score. Pinkham scored his run. On the other side, Ferguson led off with a safe liner to centre, and took his 1st easily. Pearce now came to the bat, and a good hit was looked for, but he first gave a chance for a foul which the wet ground back of third prevented from being caught; but afterwards he fell a victim to McAtee from a throw by Zettlein; Higham then hit an easy liner to Duffy on which he was doubled up at first, and before he got back to second Wood had held the ball from Duffy, the double play closing the innings very prettily.

Tracey started the third innings with a sharp hit to Higham, who muffed the ball and gave Tracey a life. By a good throw of Mills', however, Tracey was captured at second by Higham, who offset his error by this good play. McAtee then took his base on called balls, and by Simmons' hit to Wood each of the runners reached second. Simmons being pretty retired by Start at first by a one-hand catch, and as Foley fell to Patterson the innings ended for a blank. On the other side Pearce led off with an easy ball to Wood and retired at first. Higham then hit safely to centre for his first, but by a bad throw of Foley's he reached his second. Hatfield was muffed badly by Duffy; Patterson's high ball to centre field being badly judged and dropped by Foley, Higham scored his run, and Hatfield took his third. Start then hit to Duffy, who, in his desire to get home, fielded the ball too long, and the result was that Start had a life, Patterson getting to third. Wolters then took his base on called balls, which left three men on bases. By Eggler's hit to Zettlein, Patterson was forced out at home, and Mills' high ball to Wood put him out, the innings closing for two runs scored and none earned, though eight men had been to the bat.

The fourth innings added no runs to the Chicago score, Pearce, Hatfield and Ferguson fielding the side out, Zettlein alone making a base hit. This left the lead in the hands of the Mutuals. On the other side Ferguson opened with a lively ball to the club house, on which he easily secured his third, and by Pearce's safe bounder to left field he came home, being a victim of Wood's in trying to reach his second on his hit. Higham then hit to Duffy and retired at first, but Hatfield checked the outs with a safe hit to right field. By a fine catch of Hodes' on a strike Hatfield was captured at second by Wood on Hodes' throw, the innings closing with the first earned run in the game.

In the fifth innings Wood led off with a safe hit, but the next three were finely fielded out, Zettlein in succession by Wolters, Ferguson and Start. On the other side the Mutes did no better, as they were relieved in one, two three order, by Pinkham and Simmons. The score now stood at 3 to 2 in favor of New York, and the game in a very interesting position.

In the sixth innings Foley fell a victim to Ferguson, and though Start muffed Pinkham's ball, he managed to touch the base before Pinkham could, and as Hodes hit to Ferguson, the Whites retired for the fourth time in succession without a score. Zettlein, on the other side, in this innings after Eggler had been well fielded out by Wood, Mills hit safely to right field for two bases, and, by a passed ball, reached his third. Ferguson was next, and hitting a high foul ball, was easily caught by McAtee, and had Duffy thrown Pearce's ball directly to first, the Mutes would have been whitewashed—instead, Dick had a life given him. By two passed balls, he had two bases given him, after which Higham took his first. By a fine throw of Hodes' to Wood, Higham was captured at second, and the innings closed for the single unearned run.

In the seventh innings, after the three first strikers had been well fielded out by Pearce and Hatfield, Wood hit a two bagger of the fair foul kind, but before a run could be scored Tracey hit high to Eggler and retired. On the other side, after two men had been well put out, Pinkham and Duffy allowed a bounder from Start's bat to go between them; but by Wolters' hit to Zettlein the innings ended with a blank. Two innings were now left only for the Chicagos to pull up in the score standing at 4 to 2 at the close of the seventh innings.

McAtee opened play in the eighth innings with a hot one to Pearce and he retired at first. By a bad throw of Higham's, Simmons then had a life given him, and by a short throw of Ferguson's, Foley reached his base safely. By Pinkham's hit to Start that player was put out at first, each man advancing a base, and as Hodes hit high and safe to centre field two runs were scored, thereby tieing the Mutual score, Zettlein ending the innings with a ball to Pearce. On the other side Eggler opened with a safe hit to centre and made his base, by a fine throw of Hodes', Eggler was captured at second by Duffy, and as Mills' high ball to the out-field was prettily held by Tracey the game began to look better for Chicago. Ferguson then hit to Wood and closed the innings by a whitewash, the score at the close of the eighth innings standing 4 to 4. The contest now began to be exciting, and the play began to be watched with eager interest by the crowd which had invested on the Mutuals.

In the ninth innings Duffy led off and gave a chance for a tip bound catch to Mills, but it was not taken, and, afterwards, by a safe grounder, Duffy made his base. By a passed ball he got to second, and, by Wood's pretty hit, he reached third. This was an auspicious opening for Chicago, and they began to bat with confidence. Tracey now hit a ball to Pearce, who passed it home to Mills to out off Duffy; but Mills' sore hand told on the score this time, and by a muff Duffy scored his run, and Wood skilfully stole home, Tracey getting his base. By Simmons' hit to Ferguson a good double play was made, and the innings was ended. They left the champions in the van by a score of 6 to 4, and as the Mutes went to the bat things looked bad for their success. Pearce opened with a hot ball to Duffy, but it was finely fielded to McAtee in time. Higham had run for third, and before he got back to second Wood had held the ball from Duffy, the double play closing the innings very prettily.

Tracey started the third innings with a sharp hit to Higham, who muffed the ball and gave Tracey a life. By a good throw of Mills', however, Tracey was captured at second by Higham, who offset his error by this good play. McAtee then took his base on called balls, and by Simmons' hit to Wood each of the runners reached second. Simmons being pretty retired by Start at first by a one-hand catch, and as Foley fell to Patterson the innings ended for a blank. On the other side Pearce led off with an easy ball to Wood and retired at first. Higham then hit safely to centre for his first, but by a bad throw of Foley's he reached his second. Hatfield was muffed badly by Duffy; Patterson's high ball to centre field being badly judged and dropped by Foley, Higham scored his run, and Hatfield took his third. Start then hit to Duffy, who, in his desire to get home, fielded the ball too long, and the result was that Start had a life, Patterson getting to third. Wolters then took his base on called balls, which left three men on bases. By Eggler's hit to Zettlein, Patterson was forced out at home, and Mills' high ball to Wood put him out, the innings closing for two runs scored and none earned, though eight men had been to the bat.

THE HAYMAKERS' TOUR.

HAYMAKERS vs. CLIPPERS, OF ILION, N. Y.

The Haymakers left Troy early on Monday morning, Aug. 21st, and the same day arrived at Ilion, N. Y., and they were met at the depot by a delegation of the Clippers, of that place, and escorted to Small's Hotel, where they sat down to dinner. They started for the grounds at 2 o'clock, the appearance of a storm keeping many people from the grounds. About 400 people were present. The contest proved to be decidedly one sided, as will be seen by the score:—

ATHLETIC vs. C. M. ROTH.

On Monday, August 21st, a game was played at 25th and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, between the Athletic and the Geo. M. Roth clubs, the latter a rising and excellent amateur organization of the same city. The Athletics thus made their first appearance in a match game since the 7th of August last, on which occasion, in a crippled condition, they sustained their most disastrous defeat of the season, at the hands of the Boston Red Stockings. Nearly two thousand persons were assembled to witness the game, and Meyerle, who has entirely recovered from his late injuries, was the subject of a grand ovation from his numerous Philadelphia friends. The Roths played a fair fielding game, Deshong and Watt in the out-field especially distinguishing themselves by some brilliant fly-catches. The Athletics batted well, but played loosely in the field. The following is the score of the game:—

THE SARATOGA RACE MEETING.

FIFTH DAY, TUESDAY, AUGUST 22D.

DUFFY WINS THE STRIPPLE CHASE—MIDDAY THE MILE DASH FOR ALL AGES—JOE DANIELS THE $250 PURSE FOR TWO-YEAR-OLDS —AND PI-KOKER THE TWO-MILE DASH.

On Monday, Aug. 21st, the weather was so unpropitious that the races set down for that day had to be postponed until the following, and the large concourse assembled found it a dreary task to while away the long hours of a wet day in Saratoga. All human ills have, however, a period, and, although the sun did not shine on Tuesday morning, it didn't rain, and at about 1 P. M. old Sol showed a bright, clear face and dissipated the morning mists, much to the joy of the large assembly which had congregated on the track. There were five races on the cards, the first of which, a match against time between Harry Bassett and a mile in 1:41, was postponed on account of the track being too heavy. The next event was a steeple chase handicap for a purse of $600, and the entries were Lawrence's bay horse Jim Tisdale, carrying 135 pounds; Colonel McDaniels' brown colt Pol Seller or Earl of Richmond, with 117 pounds; Gaffney & Tuley's bay horse Vesuvius, with 148 pounds; Bannatyne's bay gelding Duffy, with 144 pounds, and Dr. Welton's brown colt Astronomer, with 117 pounds. Only Vesuvius, Duffy and Astronomer started, Duffy taking first money and Astronomer second, Vesuvius, the favorite, losing all chances for winning by Gaffney falling at the second water jump. Time, 6:38. Summary:—

SARATOGA RACING ASSOCIATION MEETING.—FIFTH DAY, Aug. 22D.—Grand extra steeple-chase handicap, about three miles, over a fair hunting country; $350 to the first, $200 to the second and $100 to the third horse; three or more to start; entrance free.

Time, 3:48¾.

SIXTH DAY, WEDNESDAY, AUG. 23D.

HELMBOLD DEFEATS LONGFELLOW—MOSELLE TAKES THE THREE-QUARTER RACE AND EOLUS THE CONSOLATION PURSE.

This was expected to be the closing day, the managers having the misfortune of knowing that to-day is the great day of the successful turf event held at that fashionable watering place. Two events of far more than ordinary importance were arranged for decision on that day, viz., the attempt of Harry Bassett to run a mile inside of 1:41, and the great four-mile race, which had excited the attention of turfmen and others for weeks. Time, weather and an excellent attendance of spectators—greater than on any previous day, as might well have been anticipated—conduced to make it a day long to be remembered by all, and everybody seemed to be in the gayest, happiest mood. Four races had been programmed, but in consequence of the heavy state of the track, Mr. Hunter, the owner of Harry Bassett, paid forfeit in his match against time.

THE FIRST RACE

was for a purse of $800, for all ages, open to horses that had run and not won during the two meetings. Moselle was the favorite, but Preceder got off first. At the half mile pole, however, Moselle was nearly two lengths ahead, and upon entering the home-stretch was three lengths to the good. Just now Precedent came rushing forward and managed to place his nose a length in front, but Moselle's rider, urging her on with whip and spur, won by a length. Time, 1:21¾. Summary:—

SIXTH DAY, Aug. 23d.—Purse $300, for all ages that have run and not won during the two meetings; three-quarters of a mile.

|---|---|
| George W. Loud entered b f Moselle, 3 yrs, by Asteroid, dam Kildair's dam, 87 lbs | 1 |
| J. B. Harbeck, jr., entered b c Precedent, 3 yrs, by Censor or Jerome Edgar, dam Nannie Lewis, 90 lbs | 2 |

Time, 1:15½; 1:45¾.

TROTTING AT PROSPECT PARK.—Two trots came off on this Brooklyn, L. I., track, on Thursday, Aug. 24th, Members' day, of which we here give the summaries:—

CUPID'S FOIBLES, FOLLIES AND FANCIES.

LET US BE FRIENDS.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

Then of the sorrowful heart, passionless—cold;
How for a brother's love to these vainly was told,
How for a brother's love to these vainly was told,
How for a brother been, humbly it bends,
Though thou must love me not—let us be friends.

Then of the pure, high brow, stainless and calm;
Though for thy heavenward heart earth has no charm,
Still this fond prayer for thee warmly ascends,
Though thou must love me not—let us be friends.

Then of the lofty soul, sinless and fair;
Though to thy love my heart may not aspire,
Prayers for thy happiness upward it sends,
Craving but one sweet boon—let us be friends.

A WOMAN'S TREACHERY.

FATAL CONSEQUENCES OF KEEPING AN APPOINTMENT.

The people of Atlanta, Ga., have been thrown into a fever of excitement by the shooting of a man named C. Clark, a conductor on the Atlanta and West Point R. R. on Aug. 14th, by a father and two sons named Turner, whose victim having been decoyed to the fatal spot by a their victim having been decoyed to the fatal spot by a daughter named Miss H. Turner. The event occurred at about eight o'clock P. M. A couple of policemen took the three Turners into custody, and upon their admitting that it was them who had shot the wounded man conveyed them to the calaboose. Meanwhile parties had looked after Mr. Clark, and finding him dangerously hurt and unable to rise, he was carried into the nearest residence and a physician summoned to attend him. In all fourteen shots were fired at the wounded man, of which but two took effect, either of which, however, was sufficient to produce death. Mr. Clark distinctly recognized the parties attacking him, they being personally well known to him; but, unfortunately, could not tell which one of them it was who fired the two shots which struck him, and it is fair to presume that the prisoners themselves cannot tell, their firing being so rapid and indiscriminate. The prisoners, on their arrival at the calaboose, gave the following version of the affair:—"That they had long suspected Clark of an improper intimacy with their sister, whom, it was believed by them, he had seduced from the paths of rectitude and virtue, and that they had been waiting to fix the crime upon him, that they might award him the summary punishment they felt he deserved. That the day preceding their attack on Clark they had intercepted a letter from him to their sister, appointing an assignation, whereupon they determined to take the matter into their own hands and to deal with the offender as they chose. To this end they planned the ambush on Whitehall street.

The statement of the dying man puts a very different face on the affair, however. He says that he received through the general post office a note, subscribed in a neat, feminine hand, "M. Turner," requesting him to meet the writer at any place and on any evening convenient for him to appoint, as she very much wished to see him. That though personally unacquainted with the author of the note, he knew her to be the sister of two brothers named Turner, employed on the same road as himself, and, by reputation, "handsome, attractive and fast." He had, besides, seen the young lady once or twice on the street. Though surprised at her imprudence in writing to him, he nevertheless resolved to answer her billet, designating Walton street, eight o'clock P. M., Monday, Aug. 14th, as the place and time for the meeting. Attending to the appointed rendezvous, Mr. Clark found the young lady awaiting him. Greeting him with a smile and a conscious pressure of the hand, which he interpreted to mean that there should exist a perfect understanding between them, she took his arm and the two proceeded up Walton street, half concealed from observation in the deep shadow of the overhanging branches of the trees, which so thickly line the sidewalks of that quiet little thoroughfare.

Suddenly, as they arrived at the first street crossing, three men—the two brothers and the father of Miss Turner—sprang from around the corner of a building, where they had been secreted, and, without other words of warning than frightful oaths, began firing upon him with pistols.

At the first alarm Mr. Clark's companion drew back with a loud scream, though retreating no further than to place herself a short distance in the rear of the attacking party, where she continued to stand an observer of the exciting scene.

Being entirely unarmed and having no means of defending himself, Mr. Clark attempted to spring behind the nearest tree and halloa for help. At the first simultaneous discharge of the three revolvers Mr. Clark received with a bullet hole through his lungs, but being a very powerful man he sprang to his feet, and, as stated, endeavored to shield his person behind the friendly trunk of a small tree standing by the side of the walk. This he was but partially able to do. His assailants kept up their murderous fire upon him from their repeaters, and a second ball striking him, this time in the stomach, he sank helpless to the ground. On the strength of Mr. Clark's statement, together with the note from Miss Turner, which he had preserved and had about him at the time, and which he placed in the hands of the officers of the law, the authorities promptly ordered the arrest of Miss Turner, and she, consequently, passed the night in the calaboose, a cell being assigned her near that occupied by her father and brothers. The unhappy young woman, through the efforts of her counsel, was admitted to bail in the sum of $2,500.

Before Miss Turner was released from the calaboose she made a statement which will prove most damaging to her father's and brothers' cause, and which stamps their attack upon Clark's life as a most diabolically planned and cowardly murder. Alarmed at the extent of Mr. Clark's injuries, and stung by the keenest remorse for her connection in the fatal affray, Miss Turner has considered that she wrote the note to Clark at the demand of her brothers, who, she alleges, have for some months harbored a bitter enmity against Clark, threatening repeatedly that they would "get drive him off the railroad;" that when she received Clark's reply to her note, appointing Walton street as the place of their meeting, it was planned by her two brothers and her father that she should walk with her dupe up Walton street and past a certain designated house, behind which they were to await concealed; that upon her approach with Clark they were to spring out and attack him, she flying out of danger at a given signal from them.

IN AND OUT OF JAIL.

A FRAIL FEMININE'S INFLUENCE.

Madame Adelaide Beaumont is one of the very worst women in New York, as her husband William is one of the most despicable of men. They have amassed a large fortune during the last twenty years, it is said, by keeping a notorious house, and the husband by enticing innocent young girls into it. They own their present place of business in West Twenty-sixth street, which is one of a row of seven of the worst places in the city. On the 9th inst., a pretty girl, fourteen years of age, was rescued from their den, and when she was taken to court, Capt. Borden denied from the house to Justice Shandley and asked for a warrant. The warrant was granted, and Madame Beaumont and her husband were arrested. The case was tried in the Special Sessions before Justice Dowling on Thursday last. Capt. Burden testified that he had frequently been obliged to send officers to the Beaumonts' house to take children out of it at the request of their parents. Two of his officers testified that they had gone to the place on different occasions for little girls, one of whom was only eleven years of age, and on each occasion they had found a number of other girls between ten and fifteen years of age there. The mother of one of the children having been put upon the stand, tearfully corroborated the testimony of the police. Justice Dowling, before passing sentence, said:—

Mrs. Beaumont, I have known you a good many years, and you are a thoroughly bad woman. If this frightful evil must exist, there are plenty of women to pursue the calling without destroying the unfortunate little children who may happen to fall in your way. Whatever show of reason there may be for a woman's living by this means, there is none for a man—I should say a male. That one could be found to eat, drink and live in such a house is horrible to contemplate. For twenty years you have been engaged in this city at the same business, and amassed wealth in it. I intend now to put a stop to your further progress. You had a place like this in Wooster street, and removed to Greene. Seven years ago I arrested you on Broadway for shooting. It is time now you gave this up, and as you won't, why, I'll make you. Six months in the Penitentiary for you, and a fine of $250, and stand committed until the fine be paid. Beaumont, one year for you, with the same fine, on similar conditions.

Madame Dailey, who keeps the same kind of a house in West Fourth street, was also sent to Blackwell's Island at the same time, on complaint of her next door neighbor, a Mr. Pepper. A morning newspaper, commenting upon these sentences, said:—

The war upon the up town haunts of sin has been commenced, and the death knell of vice, that flaunts in open day, robed in satin and velvet, has been sounded. One by one, in a gently line, the owners of these dens will be led to the block, where they need expect no mercy.

This was on Thursday last. On Saturday afternoon, about one o'clock, as a Sun reporter was walking up Broadway, just above the Grand Central Hotel, he saw Madame Beaumont and Madame Bailey enter an open barouche and drive up Broadway. They were dressed in gorgeous apparel and sparkled with diamonds. They seemed in the best possible spirits. The reporter followed the barouche, and saw them turn into West Fourth street and stop at Mme. Bailey's house, which they entered, to the astonishment of Mr. Pepper, who stood on his own stoop next door, and to whom they bowed. Mme. Beaumont is rich and boasts of her influence. A highly respectable gentleman of this city owns a house which his agents let to her, being unaware of her character. She was ejected after a deal of trouble, and meanwhile the rent accumulated. The gentleman sued her for the amount and got judgment five different times, she contriving to have the judgment opened each time. The question is how these dangerous women obtained the discharge from Black well's Island before they had served two days!—N. Y. Sun, Aug. 24th.

A DIVORCE SUIT IN POLYGAMANIA!

Mrs. Harriet Hawkins, of Salt Lake City, has instituted a suit for a divorce from her husband, Thomas Hawkins. The Salt Lake City Tribune of recent date says:—"She alleges that she was married to him in England in 1850, and that they have lived in this territory for about eighteen years, and have six children. She also charges that about six years ago her husband took another wife, and about three years ago he took a third wife and has two children by each of them; that he has deserted her and her children; has abused her, even threatened her life, and a few months ago dragged her out of her house and beat her cruelly because she would not remove from it so that he might sell it. This case is pending undecided in the Third District Court. The defendant lives at Lehi. Mrs. Hawkins has made another move in the game. She has made an affidavit charging her husband with adultery, and Chief Justice McKean has issued a warrant and caused his arrest under the following statue of the territory of Utah, which may be found on page 68, section 31:—'Every person who commits the crime of adultery shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding twenty years, and not less than three years or by a fine not exceeding $1,000 and not less than $300, or by both fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court. And when the crime is committed between parties any one of whom is married, both are guilty of adultery and shall be punished accordingly. No prosecution for adultery can be commenced but on the complaint of the husband or wife.' The preliminary examination will take place in the court room in this city. Mr. Hawkins has been sent to Camp Douglas for safe keeping."

ELOPEMENT.—A youth of eighteen and a young lady of sixteen summers registered at Mason House, Indianapolis, one day last week, giving as their residence San Jose, California. They were assigned to different apartments, and all was serene until the arrival of the train from Jeffersonville next day, which brought the respective, if not altogether respected, fathers of the young gentleman and lady aforesaid. The last arrivals were not long in discovering the whereabouts of their son and daughter, whom, it appears, had eloped, and would have lengthened the distance from home only for a scarcity of funds. The elopement was based upon the refusal of the parents of each to their marriage, the principal objection being the youthfulness of the matrimonial aspirants. On meeting the runaways at the Mason House, the two fathers gave way to their entreaties and consented to their marriage, which was at once consummated, and furnished the necessary for a wedding tour, upon which the happy pair started in the direction of Cincinnati.

AN ENOCH ARDEN CASE.

A one-armed horseman recently traveling through Missouri, stopped at a blacksmith shop to have his horse shod. The smith noticed the empty sleeve, and asked him if he lost his arm in the war. He replied with a sigh, that he did, and even more, going on to relate how he had left home to enlist in the Southern army, and at the close of the war, on going back, he found that his wife, who thought him dead, had moved away, and he had since been unable to obtain a trace of her. "What is your name?" said the blacksmith. When the answer was "J. M. Waldrup," he suddenly released the hoof over which he had been bending, and without looking at the ex-soldier cried:—"Follow me into the house?" and hurriedly led the way. Amazed as he was at such conduct, Waldrup mechanically obeyed the unexpected bidding, and before he could pause to think, was in the presence of a comely matron, about whose sewing chair three happy children were playing. She was the blacksmith's wife, the mother of his little ones, yet so she arose to see whom the smith had brought in, and caught sight of the stranger's face, one wild shriek proclaimed the instantaneous recognition, and she fainted. In the belief that Waldrup was dead, she had married the blacksmith of Cedar City in the very year of the soldier's parole, and now could only confess her dread mistake, and call afternately upon either husband and her God for pardon. After the first agitation of the singular re-union had partially subsided, the two men returned to the smithy and talked the matter over as sensibly and coolly as their respective feelings permitted. Devotedly as he loved the woman, the honest blacksmith admitted the other's stronger right to her and generously consented that she herself should decide between them. After a long passion of tears and self reproach, she elected to go with him whom she had loved the first, but declared with bitter lamentations that she could not leave her children. The smith, raising his head from his breast, on which it had dropped in the first despondency of his great affliction, eyed her wistfully for a moment and then said:—"You shall take them, my dear!" When the steamboat St. Luke stopped at the landing, some hours later, Waldrup went aboard with his still weeping and thickly-veiled wife, and the blacksmith followed with the children. The boat's bell rang, for the starting, and the dread separation was at hand. The crew, the passengers, the captain—all who witnessed it—were affected to tears by the touching scene. With great drops rolling down his tawny cheeks, the smith kissed his children, one after another, and in a choking voice bade their mother an eternal good-bye. The two men gazed wistfully into each other's face, shook hands long and earnestly, and then the blacksmith, by a strong effort of iron will, released the hand of Waldrup and walked quickly to the shore. He never turned his face again towards the boat, which soon passed out of sight around a merciful bend of the river, but strode on with head bowed down, to the home whither the voices of wife and children should welcome him no more.

INSULTS TO WOMEN.—A lady correspondent to the Boston Herald, of Aug. 22d, has given a very lively illustration of the conduct of the female sex in that city. In her introductory she says:—"I am going to speak not from what I have observed for a few months, but from two or three years' close observation. Having occasion to be out until about eleven o'clock P. M., sometimes later, I have taken particular notice of the actions of men and women, both old and young, at night; and I must confess that the females are more to blame than the males. For instance, a good looking man, or one supposed to be wealthy, cannot walk the principal streets of Boston, particularly Tremont and Washington, without being insulted—if so I may call it, without horrifying the female ear, by saying that a man can be insulted. Let any one who doubts this take a stroll along any of these streets and they will see girls and women attracting the notice of the other sex by nods, smiles, obscene talk and so forth. How then can a female write with propriety and blame the male sex, when so many of her own sex act thus? I have been a close observer of human nature for years, by night and I never saw a female who went straight along minding her own business insulted. Sometimes there will come along a couple of girls who will laugh boisterously, push one another and otherwise misbehave; presently a couple of young men will come along and address them. They will feel insulted sometimes. Who are to blame in such a case? What more natural than for those young men to take these females for inmates of houses of ill fame, both from their language and actions? The best way for Mary D. Morton and all others of her sex who find fault with the conduct of some of the male sex, is either to get up a society for mutual improvement of the majority of her sex who walk the streets at night, or let those who are obliged to be out walk straight home without unbecoming conduct."

A LITTLE STRANGER.—A Concord, N. H., farmer and his wife, who had lost all their children, were astonished to receive a strange infant at their door a few days ago. On examining the basket which had been thrust within the door, they found all the articles in great abundance that are usually considered indispensable to complete the wardrobe of a high born infant. There was also a delicately perfumed note, written in a lady's hand, saying that the child was well born, giving its age, and particularly desiring that it should be christened by the name therein written. It also gave a reason for leaving the child with the farmer and his wife the fact that they had recently lost one of about the same age, and the writer believed it would be more tenderly cared for by them than by others who had not been similarly bereft. The little waif has been taken unreservedly into the affections of both the farmer and his wife, as much as if it were the flesh of their flesh, and bone of their bone. They have never taken any pains to ascertain who its parents are, but they think, as the child grows older, they can see gradually developing in its face, features peculiar to a Concord family of no mean pretensions.

A SOLEMN WEDDING.—A Cincinnati paper tells of a singular wedding which took place in that city a few days ago. A young lady was engaged to be married, but her mother took fatally sick and told her daughter, as she could not live until the day appointed, to see her lover and have the marriage consummated at an earlier date, as she did not wish to die until she saw her daughter married. Accordingly the day was set, only a few days from the time of the interview. But on the morning of the day appointed the mother suddenly died, but her last words were an earnest request that the marriage should not be postponed, and the suffering of the daughter in complying is hardly to be conceived. The gloom of death was over the household and followed to the church. It sat on the pale face and orange wreath of the beautiful bride, and hung mournfully on the solemn responses of the service. The little that sympathy could do in so sad a case was abundantly given.

A "DEADFALL" EXHIBITION.—A lady, now traveling in the west, lately witnessed in Denver City, what was to her "very dreadful," she says "a revolting, almost ghastly exhibition of woman's rights." At a circus in that city she saw among the performers "two blondes who did the most daring and astonishing things on the trapeze, on the tapis as acrobats, and, oh, heavens! as tumblers!" The writer adds:—"An old fashioned conservative could not have been more shocked when Elizabeth Blackwell went into medicine, and Antoinette Brown into divinity, than I was at seeing these women in a female who went straight along minding her own business insulted. Sometimes there will come along a couple of girls who will laugh boisterously, push one another and otherwise misbehave; presently a couple of young men will come along and address them. They will feel insulted sometimes. Who are to blame in such a case? What more natural than for those young men to take these females for inmates of houses of ill fame, both from their language and actions? The best way for Mary D. Morton and all others of her sex who find fault with the conduct of some of the male sex, is either to get up a society for mutual improvement of the majority of her sex who walk the streets at night, or let those who are obliged to be out walk straight home without unbecoming conduct."

THE NAKED TRUTH.—Arthur F. Lincoln during the warm weather has been rooming on Boston Common. Between ten and eleven o'clock on the night of Aug. 16th one of Arthur's room mates, not thinking it proper that Arthur should go to bed with his breeches on as he had done, removed these articles from Arthur's extremities while he was snoozing. He also pulled off Arthur's boots and carried them away. In this unhappy plight the poor lad found Arthur and took him to the station house. Another party named Henry Tufts also suffered in the same way, and on the morning of Aug. 17th the police arrested William Rogers on suspicion of being the man who robbed Tufts.

A SURPRISE.—The sleeping apartment of five girls in the boarding house of Mrs. Stanwood, No. 28 Massachusetts Corporation, Lowell, Mass., was entered by an unknown man, through a window opening from a shed, shortly before midnight on Aug. 20th. The girls were awakened but too frightened to make an outcry, and he remained in the room over an hour without committing any other offence, whatever his purpose may have been. One of the inmates at length ran into the apartment of Mrs. Stanwood, giving an alarm and the intruder fled, leaving his coat behind him.

A SUSPENDED LOVER.—Not far from Wytheville, Va., a lady young attempted to leave the parental mansion, at dead of night, by lowering herself from her chamber by means of a pulley and rope fastened to the window. She had just reached the ground, where her lover awaited her, when her escapade was apprehended, seized the young man, fastened the hook to his clothing, and raised him skyward, leaving him dangling in the air until morning. The elopement is postponed indefinitely.

A BRIDEGROOM MEANLY SERVED.—A good story is told of a wedding out at Peoria, Ill. A couple were married at a hotel, and, after the bride had retired, some mischievous fellows procured a ladder, ascended to the room and securely nailed up the door and destroyed the ladder. Unable to get in the room, and the landlord refusing to allow the door to be forced, the bridegroom was given other quarters until morning, when a lightning rod man was hired to ascend and draw the nails from the door.

ROCHEFORT'S TROUBLES.—M. Rochefort has had his troubles increased by the elopement of his daughter, aged 15, with a young man of 18. She was at school in Jersey (Guannel Islands), it is said, whence the pair went to London and were married. The mother of the bridegroom, however, followed them, seized her son and packed him off to the colonies, while the bride was sent back to Jersey.

A PAIR OF RUNAWAYS.—An elopement is reported in the lower part of New Haven, Conn., the parties being a married man, who has left a young and pretty wife and child and taken to his bosom the love of an honest and industrious mechanic and left for parts unknown. The affair occurred on the night of the 18th ult. The police are on the track of these destroyers of family peace.

FONDNESS FOR SPORT.

The Nottingham (Eng.) Journal gives, "on undoubted authority," a characteristic and somewhat pathetic illustration of a Yorkshire lad, who had spent one of his first shillings of pocket money in bribing a stable keeper to let him have a peep at Rataplan, and whose passion amounted almost to a mania. He was taken very ill and lay dying of consumption. But his interest in his favorites of the turf, instead of decreasing, grew with the growth of his disease and strengthened with his weakness. The clergyman of his parish, the Rev. Mr. M——, was assiduous in his attention to the dying boy, for whom he had conceived a liking. Having spent half an hour at his bedside one autumn day, the minister noticed that the lad was unusually restless and absent minded.

"Now, my boy," he said in the kindest tones, "if you have anything on your mind, any message to leave me, or anything that you would wish me to do for you, I hope you will tell me at once."

The boy looked up with a half abashed air, but seeing that the minister meant what he said, replied:—

"Well, sir, this is the day that "Leger" is run and the pigeons will be here with the news by this time."

Instead of reproving the poor lad, the minister said if it would please him he would go and inquire. He came back with the word that Achievement was first and Hermit second. The boy was delighted, for he had always thought that Achievement was "a good hoss," but after a little he sank back upon his pillow, exhausted but seemingly satisfied. The clergyman remained with him for some time, and then, after a few more kind words, bade him good bye. He had just got to the door when the boy motioned him back to his bedside. He was too much exhausted to speak unless in a whisper, but made a sign to the clergyman to put down his head. When this was done the lad whispered:—

"Achievement was the first and Hermit second; do you know what came in third?"

This was the ruling passion strong in death," for the poor lad died the same evening.

AN OLD LADY in the house was discussing the cold weather, and when the thermometer was referred to and her attention called to the state of the mercury, she said: "La me, is that what you tell how cold it is by? We had one of them things once, but I never could tell what time it was by it."

BONES AS A LEGITIMATE ACTOR.

MINSTREL GAG.

INTERLOCUTOR.—Well, brother Bones, I am longing to hear a little of your dramatic experience, when you had promised to give me.

BONES.—Did I? Well, I'll tell you all about it. Them was my times, you bet. I was one of de heavies, den; used to play Richard and Otello, and Macbeth, in a way to clar de house and set all de audiences fightin'. But when it come to de mellow drama, den I was in my glory, you'd better believe it! Used to study a new part of forty lengths ebery day, and nebber axed mo' dan tree-forts of de clear receipts. Always liked to play de Castle parts, because I could get high as I'd a mind to, and all to de part. Once played Julie O'Dormilly, in de "Five Degrees of Crime." You all know about de degrees ob crime and such things. You know de play opens wid a drinkin' bout. Used to make dat de principal scene of de piece. Kept it up a couple of hours, until one night de manager said de liquor bill was too expensiveness, and we must omit dat scene, or go it on toast water. But it was de favorite scene wid de audiens, 'cause when we got singin' songs dey would always come in de chorus, and take a drink wid us, which made it soshoot. Dat was always sure to bring de full house, but de manager said it wouldn't pay, and shut pan scordin'. He was a jealous cuss, he was, and as I was always near for de lovers, he was terror of our agreement. I had de run ob de theater, and he didn't like it much. When I'd get a good fair hold of a gal, and was preceedin' to kiss her and paw her all over, 'cordin' to de 'Lear,' de manager would stan' at de wings and cry out so de whole audiens could hear him:—"Stop dat lally gagin' dere—dere's too much of dat." De passage in de "Romeo and Juliet":—

"How silkery de sweet tongues ob lubbers sound by night," he always used to make de ole feller so mad dat at last he intredooce a scene for himself to stop off de nonsense, as he called it. At last de performers used to stick themselves all ober wid pins and needles—by de manager's orders, dey said. Oh course de whole company hate me, and do all dey could to bodder me, but I pay dem back, for once, when dere was a battle on hand, I bribe de super and dey all got a coat of de realistic and part was such a lamentable day I was obliged to take shelter in de orchester. I always liked to play in de Corsican Brodders, for de manager play de widin in dat piece, and he done it natural, too, and if I'd only let him step around lively to do de dust and fight I'd. Den dey get to puttin pepper on de stove to sneeze de audience out, but when it came my turn for a benefit I brought on Tom and Jerry, got some boxers for de fightin' scene, and went in for a regular scrimmage. De carpenters rallied and let down a whole flour barrel onto me, out of spite, but we cleared de stage, and de spectators dey joined in, and such a time you nebber see. Nex mornin' dere wasn't no rehearsal, owing to de indisposition of principal performers, but de manager was layin' for me wid two black eyes and a hoss pistol at de stage do' ob de frayster, and so I let' dose diggins and embark in de minstrel line.

IKY.—And very prudent it was in you to do so, Bones, as doubtless you have succeeded in lining your pockets handsomely by the change.

BONES.—O, dey'll find no change in me, for I haint a bit proud if I am promoted.

IKY.—We will now have a ballad by our black and tan Sims Reeves.

"COME TO NIGHT AGAIN."

The rosy hours have flown so fast
That I'm forsaken I'm afraid;
My love, I'm very sure the last
The old clock struck was five!
The sun, a rising in the east,
Shines in the window close—
One kiss I say, give me three at least,
And come to-night again.
Chorus.—The sun, a rising, etc.

How wearily the time goes by
When you're away, my dear,
But how like mischief it does fly
As soon as you are here;
Then one more kiss before we part—
I'd cry—but 'twere in vain,
So I will say "Good-bye, sweetheart,
And come to-night again!"
Chorus.—Then one more kiss, etc.

GETTING CHALK FOR A DANCER.

Chalk is a necessary of a dancer's life. One evening, just before the curtain drew up, M. Burat de Guigy entered Fanny Elsler's dressing room.

"My dear Monsieur Burat," said Fanny, on seeing him, "I am in the greatest possible rage—I am just going on the stage and they have stolen my chalk!"

"Stolen it, of course. There's a conspiracy among them to spoil my dancing. I have inquired of them all—Nathalie, Fitzjames, Noblet and her sister—all. They pretend to know nothing about it, but I'm a conspiracy among them. Now, my dear M. Burat, you'll go and get me some chalk, will you not?"

"But my dear young lady, I don't know where to get any. It's past eleven o'clock and all the shops are shut."

"Go, run, that's a dear creature. I'll pay anything for it—its weight in gold. You have just a quarter of an hour before I shall be called to go on."

M. Burat went and returned within the specified time, evidently a little elevated, and bringing with him a score of small pieces of chalk.

"Well," cried Fanny, "what do I owe you for them."

"The price of ten petits verres, that I was obliged to take at the ten different cafes billiards from which I stole them."

DON'T YOU GO FOOLIN' ROUND THE GIRLS.

BY G. FRED. REED.

When once you get to going,
To gliding smoothly on,
Don't venture then from out your course—
Let "well enough" alone.
Mischief, embryo compound,
But when they do they're gone—
A consequence of foolin' round the girls.

I really cannot tell you
What girl I loved the best,
But I knew a little charmer,
Far prettier than the rest.
I popped the question, but I found
Her love for me a jest—
I'll not soon more be foolin' round the girls.

Now, when a handsome ankle,
Or eyes of heavenly blue,
Tooth of pearly whiteness,
Hair of golden hue,
Entice you for a moment,
Don't you go to foolin' round the girls.

A SPANISH PLAY BILL.

To the Sovereign of Heaven—
To the Mother of the eternal World—
To the Polar Star of Spain—
To the faithful Protectress of the Spanish Nation—
To the Honour and Glory of the most Holy Virgin Mary—
For her Benefit,
and for the propagation of her Worship,
The Company of Comedians
will this day give a representation of the Comic Piece, called MANUEL
The celebrated Italian will also dance
THE FANDANGO,
and the Theatre will be superbly illuminated.

THE MAKER OF MOONS.—When Hopkins, Garrick's prompter, once recommended a man to be engaged as mechanist in preparing the scenery for a new pantomime, Garrick made the following objections to employing him:—"I tell you, Hopkins, the man will never answer the purpose of the theatre. In the first place he cannot make a moon: I would not give him three-pence a piece for such moons as he showed me to-day. His suns are, if possible, worse. I gave him directions about the clouds, and such d—d clouds were never seen since the flood. Desire the carpenter to knock the rainbow to pieces; it is detestable—his stars were the only things tolerable. His honesty I have no doubt on, but until he can make a good sun, moon and rainbow, I must dispense with his future services.

BASE BALL.

BOSTON vs. MUTUAL.

THE GREEN ABOVE THE RED AGAIN.—A HEAVY BATTING GAME WITH A LIVELY BALL.

The Boston Red Stockings visited New York, Aug. 22d, to play their return game with the Mutuals, the first game of the series having been played in Boston in June last, with the result 9 to 2 in favor of the Mutuals. Both clubs had full nines, and after victories over the strong nine of the Rockford club, and as a fine display of the beauties of the game was expected at the hands of the Red Stockings, there was a large attendance within the enclosure, fully 5,000; the largest attendance, in fact, since the 4th of July. Outside, too, there was an immense crowd of fence peepers, the greatest interest being manifested in the match. Unluckily for the anticipated display of good fielding the Mutuals presented a lively red ball, and the result was heavy batting, with its sequence of a tediously lengthy contest and plenty of fielding errors on both sides. This time the Reds were the favorites with the betting sports, but they were badly taken in. The Mutual nine were not exactly in good trim, as Mills was still suffering from a sore hand, and Ferguson, slightly disabled from throwing well, had to take Smith's place at third base, the latter having been placed on the retired list from sickness, which bids fair to be lengthy. Nevertheless they had the best position, as they had a won game to their credit and the Boston nine had not.

Play was called at 3.35 P. M., with the Mutuals at the bat, a new order of striking having been made. Hatfield opened with a high ball, which Barrow ran in for and caught, but dropped, and Hatfield had a life given him. Patterson then hit a safe bounder to the left, on which he made his base, and as Start hit another past third, Hatfield came in and scored an unearned run. Wolters now took the bat with two men on earned bases, and by a safe bounding ball to right short, which Somers gathered in handily, he secured his base, Patterson coming in by the hit. By Eggler's hit to George Wright, Wolters was captured at second by Barnes—forced out, and but for a rather wild throw to Gould a double play would have been made. Eggler was dancing round first, when McVey caught him napping there by a throw to Gould, and as Mills sent a high ball to Barrows, the innings ended with two runs scored and one earned. George Wright now took the bat on the part of Boston, and hitting one of those safe fair-foul balls he nearly earned his base. By a passed ball he reached second, and, as Barnes' hot bounder to third was muffed by Ferguson, a life was given. Birdsall then hit a bounder to Higham, who muffed it badly, another life given being the result of the errors. McVey now went to the bat, and by another of those fair fouls he took his base and George Wright's run was scored, each man advancing a base. Spalding was next, and he hitting a hot bounder through Ferguson's legs, still another life was given and another run scored, Barnes, who had before been left, following suit by hitting to Ferguson, he was well thrown out at first—two out and no runs. Birdsall now came into the rescue with a sharply hit ball to centre field, on which he secured three bases the hit showing the ball to be a lively, elastic one, and as McVey hit another hot bounder to Gould, Boston, in his anxiety to get it to Start in time, overthrew the ball, and McVey took his second, and Birdsall scored another unearned run, the innings leaving the totals at 7 to 2 in favor of Boston. The Mutuals looked rather blue at this initial stock.

Patterson opened the third innings with a low bounder to George Wright, and as George had to stoop to get the ball he muffed it, his lameness telling on him in this respect. Start followed with a hot bounder to Gould, who muffed the ball on his shoulder, and Patterson scored. Wolters then hit a high ball to the club house, and as it bounded in among the crowd, Wolters got round to third by his hit sending Higham home. Eggler then hit low to George Wright, and by a quick throw to first he handle the ball, but he kept Wolters on third. Mills then hit what looked like a safe fair foul, but Spalding, by sharp fielding, got the ball to Gould in time, and still Wolters was kept on third, Eggler going to second. Higham now hit a hot one to Barnes right short, which Barnes captured in style on the fly, thereby ending the innings for the single run scored by Higham on Wolters' hit, the sharp fielding keeping Wolters from scoring. On the other side Gould and Barrows were credited with three runs, Barrows to Start, and Eggler disposed of Schaffer's high fly neatly. This left the totals at 7 to 3, the Mutuals gradually pulling up in the score.

Pearce opened the fourth innings with an easy ball to Schafer, and the latter unnecessarily got to first. Higham now hit a hot one right through Schaffer and took his base, and by Hatfield's safe grounder to second, Higham was advanced a base. Patterson then hit a high foul, which Gould attended to. Start now hit a good ball to Eggler, who quickly passed the ball to George Wright, who sent it to McVey at home base, to cut off Higham, but McVey muffed the ball, and Higham not only got in but Start and Hatfield advanced a base, McVey's throw to third also ensuring a base. Wolters now took the bat with two men on earned bases, and by a safe bounding ball to right short, which Somers gathered in handily, he secured his base, Patterson coming in by the hit. By Eggler's hit to George Wright, Wolters was captured at second by Barnes—forced out, and but for a rather wild throw to Gould a double play would have been made. Eggler was dancing round first, when McVey caught him napping there by a throw to Gould, and as Mills sent a high ball to Barrows, the innings ended with two runs scored and one earned. George Wright now took the bat on the part of Boston, and hitting one of those safe f

YACHTING AT NEWPORT, R. I.

A SERIES OF RACES FOR PRIZES.

After the Grand Union Regatta of the Eastern and New York Yacht Club, which came off on the 14th of August, off Swampscott, Mass., and of which we gave full details in our last issue, the New York squadron made sail for the harbor of Newport, where, on Monday, Aug. 22d, the first of a week of exciting cup regattas began. This race was for schooners and sloops, sailed according to the rules of the New York Yacht Club, with time allowance and flying start. The course was from an imaginary line drawn from Fort Adams to the Dumplings, to and around a flagboat off the northerly point of Block Island and return. The prize for schooners was the elegant Challenge Cup presented by Commodore Bennett and sailed for in the June annual regatta, when the Tidal Wave won it; ex-Commodore Voorhis has since returned the trophy to the club. The winner of this cup must respond to all challenges to sail for it, from any schooner in the squadron during the yachting season of 1871. The prize for sloops was also a challenge cup presented by Commodore Bennett, Vice Commodore Douglas and Rear Commodore Osgood; the same conditions and rules apply to the sloop cup and the schooner cup. The following yachts competed:—

SCHOONERS.

| Name. | Owner. | Apportion-ment | Time crossing |
|---|---|---|---|
| Sappho | William P. Douglas | 1,991 | 12h 4m 11½s. |
| Madgie | R. F. Loper | 1,466 | 12 5 43 |
| Amra | A. C. Kingsland | 1,806 | 12 12 13½ |
| Dreadnaught | Captain Samuels | | 12 6 35 |
| Palmer | R. Stuyvesant | 1,620 | 12 9 42 |
| Foam | S. Homans & J. S. Homans, Jr. | 1,357 | 12 7 56 |
| Tidal Wave | William Voorhis | 1,654 | 12 10 10 |
| Rambler | James H. Banker | 1,008 | 11 12 9½ |

SLOOPS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Gracie | H. W. Johnson & W. Krebs | 1,138 | 12 4 12 |
| Peerless | R. Maxwell | | 12 7 13½ |
| Vindex | R. C. Kober | 1,149 | 12 8 0½ |
| Sadie | F. Burgess | 966 | 12 10 9 |

At five minutes to 12, M., the first signal was given from the club's steamer, and precisely at 12 the starting signal was made. There was a good breeze blowing from the southeast, and all the competitors had been under sail for some time in the lower bay preparatory for the flying start, as the wind was fair and blowing a good working breeze even for the large schooners. The first to cross the line was the stately Sappho, the victor in so many glorious races in the waters of both hemispheres. The second yacht, and close aboard on her weather quarters, was the swift little sloop Gracie, also well known to fame. Then came the Madgie, Alarm and sloops Peerless and Vindex, with the balance of the fleet well up. The Dreadnaught, Palmer, Foam, and Tidal Wave and, last of all, the Rambler, were well together and a little astern of the others during the first four or five miles of the race. The sight as the fleet sped along towards Breton's Reef Light, with every stitch of canvas spread, was truly a grand one. As the breeze freshened, however, its effect upon the sloops was quickly noticed, while the large schooners sailed all the faster for its increased force. In Narragansett Bay the sloop Peerless, which had maintained a good position thus far in the contest, had the misfortune to carry away the head of her mast, causing the topmast to fall. This accident destroyed all her chances of winning, and she immediately hauled out of the race and in her crippled condition returned to Newport. As they approached the buoy off Block Island, it was seen that the Sappho still maintained her front rank place, with the Madgie second, by nearly eight minutes, the Palmer third, and some five minutes astern, the Madgie. One of the most exciting portions of the day's racing was the close contest of those beautiful schooners, the Alarm, Dreadnaught and Tidal Wave at this buoy, which they reached "all in a bunch," but a few seconds separating one from the other, as the annexed table will show:—

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Sappho | 1h. 39m. | 30s. | Tidal Wave | 1h. | 57m. 0s. |
| Madgie | 1 | 47 | 60 | Gracie | 2 | 02 | 00 |
| Palmer | 1 | 52 | 40 | Rambler | 2 | 06 | 35 |
| Alarm | 1 | 57 | 00 | Sadie | 2 | 15 | 00 |
| Dreadnaught | 1 | 57 | 30 | | | | |

Soon after turning the Dreadnaught overhauled and passed the Alarm to windward, and appeared to overhaul the Palmer. The Tidal Wave was still about the sixth yacht, not doing as well, apparently, as she has upon other regatta days during the season. The Rambler gradually fell off to the leeward, and the Gracie was still "number one" among the sloops. Off Point Judith the yachts were bowling along in gallant style, the Sappho still being the "ringleader" by some two or three miles, and with no prospect of any yacht in the fleet overhauling her. At this point the Madgie was still second, with the Palmer close up; then came the Dreadnaught, Alarm and Tidal Wave. The balance of the race over the home-stretch was not exciting. The Palmer passed the Madgie, and the Dreadnaught exhibited some excellent sailing, but no yacht of the fleet had rounded Castle Island before the Sappho had passed the winning line. The Madgie won the schooner prize on time allowance, and the Sadie the sloop prize by time allowance. The following is the time in which the vessels arrived, the actual time of making the race, and the corrected time by allowance:—

THE RACE FOR THE $1,000 DOUGLAS CUP.

August 23d was the day appointed for the race for Vice Commodore Douglas' cup, valued at $1,000, off Newport, flying start, open to schooners only, and to be sailed in nine hours, or no race. Course from Brenton's Reef lightship to, starboard off Block Island, thence to Vineyard Sound lightship and back to home starting point. The following started:—Wanderer, Alarm, Dauntless, Dreadnaught, Palmer, Tidal Wave and Madgie. The start was made at 9.45, with a moderate breeze from the southeast. When the race was about half over, the breeze died away and a complete calm ensued. The Palmer and Dauntless returned at 9 at night; the others did not arrive until after midnight, consequently it was decided to be "no race."

THE SAPPHO VS. TIME.

The yachting contest off Newport for Thursday, August 24th, was to have been for a cup valued at $1,000, the gift of Mr. Louis Lorillard, of the schooner Wanderer, and the course was from Brinton's Reef lightship to the Block Island buoy, thence to and around the Vineyard Sound lightship and back to the starting point. The race was to be sailed in nine hours, and to be governed by the rules of the New York Yacht Club. The weather was thick and a violent rain was falling; but at 10 A. M. the weather was more favorable and the judges' boat steamed out of Newport and took her position off the lightship. Soon after, the Palmer, Sappho and Dreadnaught made sail for the starting point. A fine breeze was blowing from the southwest, but before the yachts reached the outer harbor the fog became heavy again. After tacking for some time across the bay mouth of Beaver Tail Point, the Dreadnaught was put about and started on the return to her anchorage, Capt. Samuels believing that none of the yachts would start. The fog lifted as the Sappho neared the lightship, and, after waiting 30 minutes for the arrival of a second boat, without which the prize could not be awarded, the judges' steamer returned to the city. The Palmer had given up the contest a short time before. The report having been generally circulated that the course proposed for the day's race could not be completed in eight hours at this season of the year, Vice Commodore Douglas, believing that he saw an opportunity for proving the mistake, determined to sail over the course. The Sappho accordingly started at 12, through a heavy fog, with the breeze dead ahead, and was hauled so close upon the wind that her leeward plank shear was in the water. Point Judith was passed in two tacks; at 1.44, and after going about several times, she headed for Block Island buoy, rounding at 3.19:10. She then squared away for the Vineyard Sound lightship, with both topsails flying, and soon sent aloft her balloon jib-topmast staysail. The wind was dead aft during the run of 26 miles, and the Sappho sped through the water at a rate exceeding eight knots an hour. She turned the lightship off Vineyard Sound at 3.03, and the direction of the wind was such that she laid her course straight for Brenton's Reef lightship. This was reached at 8.08:30, making the distance, 64 miles, in 7 hours 56 minutes and 30 secon ds. It is very doubtful if this time will ever be equaled on this course. Vice Commodore Douglas takes this occasion to issue a formal challenge to sail any yacht to race 30 miles to windward, under a ten knot breeze, for a cup valued at $1,000.

YACHT REGATTA AT NEW LONDON.

The Brooklyn Yacht Club, now on their annual cruise, had a regatta off New London, Conn., on Friday, Aug. 25th. The course was from the anchorage off the Pequot House to the North Hammock, keeping to the northward of all the buoys on Beach Ledge and the Sea Flower, thence to the light-ship, thence to a flag-boat off the New London lighthouse, thence to the North Hammock and to the home flag-boat off the Pequot House. The following yachts competed:—Schooners, Madeleine and Fleur de Lis. First class sloops, Addie, Kate, West Wind and Mary. Second class sloops, Qui Vive, Nettie B., Sophia, Ada, Saline and Kaiser Wilhelm; open boats, Jennie, Nettie, Frolic, Twilight, Carrie, Water Lily, Haidee, Annie, Maggie B. and Recreation. The yachts formed in line at 10 A. M., the schooners and first class sloops in the first line, with the second class sloops and open boats in two lines astern. At 12.10 the first gun was fired; at 12.25 the first class yachts started, and ten minutes later the balance of the squadron made sail. The breeze was moderate, but more suitable for the small than for the large yachts. The Madeleine exhibited excellent sailing qualities, as usual, and the sloops Kate, Qui Vive, and the open boat Jennie, as well as the large schooner Fleur de Lis, attracted great attention from the fine and experienced manner in which they were sailed. The following is the official summary:—

| | First Turn. | Home. | Actual Time. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Madeleine | 2h. 47m. 30s. | 4h. 23m. 44s. | 4h. 47m. 44s. |
| Addie | 3 37 30 | 4 39 06 | 4 59 06 |
| Qui Vive | 3 42 14 | 4 41 30 | 4 56 30 |
| Kate | 3 41 41 | 4 41 33 | 4 16 33 |
| Kaiser Wilhelm | 3 46 18 | 4 49 32 | 4 11 32 |
| Maggie B | 3 48 35 | 4 48 15 | 4 14 15 |
| Sophia | 3 54 38 | 4 57 36 | 4 21 36 |
| Fleur-de-Lis | 3 38 23 | 5 04 43 | 4 40 43 |
| Mary | 3 55 30 | 5 13 35 | 4 18 05 |
| Recreation | 3 55 35 | 5 15 30 | 4 35 30 |
| Jennie | 3 59 01 | 5 12 30 | 4 42 30 |
| Twilight | 4 00 57 | 5 20 14 | 4 20 30 |

Balance of the fleet not timed. The Madeleine wins the hotel prize, the Fleur-de-Lis the prize given by Commodore Voorhis, the Kate the second class sloop prize, and the Jennie the open boat prize. A soiree at the Pequot House terminated the regatta festivities.

UNION CLUB'S REGATTA.

The annual regatta of the Union Yacht Club, of Long Island, came off on Wednesday, 23d August, with the following entries:—

FIRST CLASS CABIN BOATS.

| Name. | Owner. | Length. | Name. | Owner. | Length. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Mouse | N. W. Hill | 36.0 | Elf | Kelsey | 31.0 |
| Julia | Gillen | 34.0 | Sarah | Hipman | 30.0 |

SECOND CLASS CABIN BOATS.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Vesta | Cass. Seymour | 30.0 | Favorite | Dickelin | 29.4 |
| Susie P | Roach | 28.6 | Lavina | Ex-Com. Spratt | 28.7 |
| Montauk | Geary | 28.4 | Frank | Frank Bonn | 31.0 |
| Lydia | Mickenbine | 28.4 | Jessie | Gibson | 28.7 |

The course was from a flag moored off the Club House near Gravesend, L. I., to the can buoy in the Swash Channel, turning it from west to east, thence to home stake-boat, turning it from south to north—the course to be sailed over three times—making a distance of twenty-one miles. The prizes were a champion pennant for each class. The start was made at half past 1 P. M., and the yachts finished the race as below, that is, all of the fleet that were timed.

| | Start. | Arrived. | Actual Time of Race. | Time by Allowance. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Frank | 1h. 23m. 0½s. | 4h. 13m. 30s. | 4h. 0m. 0s. | 4h. 4m. 0s. |
| Lavina | 1 27 30 | 4 17 30 | 3 50 00 | 4 00 00 |
| Susie P | 1 44 00 | 4 34 00 | 3 50 00 | 4 00 00 |

Judges—Harry Smedley, Captain Van Clief and C. J. Corbe.

A LETTER has been received from Commodore Ashbury by the Secretary of the New York Club, stating that the Cambria is being fitted out to sail for the cup of 1851, in the international yacht race in place of the Livonia, and that she will leave England on or about Sept. 1st.

THE SCHOONER YACHT ENCHANTRESS.—This new yacht, owned by George Lorillard, returned from her summer voyage on the 22d of August, anchoring at Newport, R. I., in 32 days, from Cowes. During her cruise she lost two of her men: the first, Joseph Benson, on the 15th of March, who was thrown overboard by the sheet of the jigger jibing, and before effort was made to save him he sank where the yacht's boat reached him. While at anchor in the harbor of Tunis, in the latter part of April, John Almer, the boatswain, had his skull fractured and died almost instantly; the sport main boltsprit broke the spreader aloft, which, falling on deck, struck Almer on the head. He was buried in Tunis. From Tunis the Enchantress voyaged to Naples, and from thence to Gibraltar. During the trip from Gibraltar to Southampton, Eng., the crew mutinied, and the cooks and stewards were obliged to secure the yacht into Southampton, where the crew were discharged. After remaining in England for more than a month, the Enchantress left Cowes for Newport on the 17th of July.

BOATING ON WHITE LAKE.—On Aug. 22d a three mile race, double sculls, for $200 and the Champion Ten Cup of White Lake, Sullivan Co., N. Y., was pulled there, the contestants being A. Tweed (nephew of the Hon. W. M.) and Harry Tillinghast, of the 22d Ward, in the "Hattie," against W. H. Roberts and Thos. Scott, of the American Club, in the "Fanny." The crab-toed oars were seven feet boats, and the course was a mile and a half to a stake boat and return. The boats got a fair start at ten minutes to five and kept well together the first half mile, when the Fanny began to show in front and kept its advantage all the home stretch, when the Hattie put on a good spurt and passed around the stake a length in front. From this out she was never caught, though pressed hard. The Hattie passed the stake-boat two lengths in front, making the three miles in 29 minutes and 4 seconds. After the race there was a grand blow out and country hop, at which everybody had a big time. Joseph R. Stockton acted as referee.

MONUS REGATTA.—On Thursday, August 24th, the second annual regatta of this club, hailing from Jersey City, came off on the South Cove. The course was from the Club House at the foot of Henderson street, eight times around the Cove, making a distance of ten miles. Seventeen boats competed, viz.:—Pigeon, Brogan, Corsair, Julia, Lackey, Hattie, Mom's, Eureka, High Daddy, Mother Casey, Ooffy Goof, Annie, Lucy, Dan Spencer, Three Brothers, Billy and Jeannette. The start was made at 2 P. M. The Julia came in first at 3.39:25; the Lackey next at 3.43:30; the latter won the race on her time allowance, and the first prize, an elegant marine glass, was awarded to her. The challenge cup was awarded to the Brogan. After the regatta a match race was sailed between the Corsair and Lucy, which resulted in a tie. Judges—W. Paulding, R. Ellsworth and Henry Baker.

FOUR OARED SHELL RACE.—The four oared match race between the Argonauts Rowing Association, of Bergen Point, N. J., and the Vesper Rowing Association, of Yonkers, N. Y., will be rowed in the Kills, off Bergen Point, on Tuesday, 29th of August. Distance, three miles. Start to take place at 4.30 P. M.

SADIE VS. HASWELL.—On Tuesday, August 29th, the well known sloop yachts, Sadie and Haswell, will sail a match race off Newport, R. I., for a cup valued at $200. The course is from Brenton's Reef lightship, twenty miles to windward and return.

THE SHREWSBURY YACHT CLUB'S sixth annual regatta will come off on Thursday, 31st of August, on the Shrewsbury river, N. J.

WARREN.—Your 30 move solution of T. M. B's "Mitrailleur" is the first and only one ever received, and shall be laid before that virtuoso in full as soon as possible.

THOS. H. BROWN.—At last we've got a solution to 780. On the qui vive to see it, eh?

GEO. E. CARPENTER.—In re that "mine," Theo. says:—"You suggest to take off two pawns and the White B, move K1 to K1 7th, and get out in 16. How's this?

Which seems to be about as simple as possible. The other change, putting a Black K1 on Q 7, puts white in + instanter. What did you mean?"

Enigma No. 774.

From the Gentleman's Journal

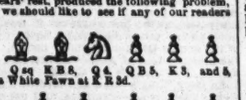
Herr H. Meyer, Chess Ed. G. J., says of this position:—"An old friend has, after some years' rest, produced the following problem, which is so difficult that we should like to see if any of our readers can solve it."



White to play and give mate in four moves.

CHEQUERS.

THE DRAUGHT CHAMPIONSHIP.—Mr. J. Brown MacIndoe has entered the arena for the chequer championship of the United States, he having defeated Dr. Clute, of this city, for it, in a match played recently in Buffalo. Indicative of his intentions, he has sent us the appended card for publication, calling Mr. Spayth to the front. It would have been better, however, had Mr. MacIndoe made his challenge more general, for perhaps there might be others who would like to take a hand in:—

CLAN.—MR. HENRY SPAYTH.—SIR.—As all my efforts to induce you to meet me across the board at our favorite game, either for fun or money, have been fruitless, I now make the following proposal: —I will play you a match at draughts, 20 games, wins and draws to count, for the championship of the United States and two hundred dollars a side. Respectfully yours, J. BROWN MACLINDOE.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 19th, 1871.

HIGHLAND GAMES IN NOVA SCOTIA.—A feature of the Sir Walter Scott centenary celebration at Halifax, N. S., Aug. 16th, was the Scottish games at the Horticultural Gardens. The competition resulted as follows:—

Running Highland Fling—1st prize, $6, G. G. Gunn, 79th; 2d prize, $3, Alexander Ross.

Putting the Heavy Stone, 22 lbs.—1st prize, $4, Henry Muir; 2d prize, $2, Charles Yorston.

Running Reel of Tulloch—1st prize, $5, Alex. Ross; 2d prize, $3, Pipe-Major R. McKenzie, 78th.

Putting Light Stone, 16 lbs.—1st prize, $4, Henry Muir; 2d prize, $2, Charles Yorston.

Running Sword Dance, or Sword Dance—1st prize, $5, James Sneddon; 2d prize, $3, R. McKenzie.

High Leap—1st prize, $3, Henry Muir; 2d prize, $2. —— Kennie.

Hop, Step and Jump—Same, Men—One prize only, $4, Alex. Ross.

Best Highland Costume, Boys—1st prize, $4, William Arthur; 2d prize, $3, George McLean.

Sack Race—1st prize, $3, Thomas Jones; 2d prize, $2, A. Bennett.

THE FAMOUS BISHOP BURNET, like many authors of later days, was very partial to tobacco, and always smoked while he was writing. In order to combine the two operations with due comfort to himself, he would bore a hole through the broad brim of his large hat, and putting his long pipe through it, puffed and wrote, and wrote and puffed, with philosophical calmness.

COMMAND OF PASSIONS.—The happiness of the human race in this world does not consist in our being devoid of passions, but in our learning to command them.

THE RING.

DEATH OF JERRY NOON.

John Calvin, better known as Jerry Noon, and who, moreover, rejoiced in the title of "the Unbought and Undefeated," died on Tuesday, Aug. 1st, at 7.30 A. M., in St. George's Hospital, London, Eng., after a month of intense suffering, the cause of his death being consumption; he had, indeed, been ailing for the past two years, but the end was much more speedy than was anticipated. Jerry was born in 1827, and was consequently in his 44th year. In early life he was employed in the firm of Messrs. Spottiswoode, printers, as "machine boy," and as a youngster showed a decided talent for boxing. When grading man's estate he held a situation at Messrs. Calvert's, the brewers, as "tun man," and in several rough "turns-up" in the neighborhood of Thames street he evinced a quickness and confidence that never deserted him through his successful career in the "magic circle." His first essay, we believe, was on Dec. 7th, 1847, with Tom Fewing, Broadward at Archery, Edge's Fields, as Referee. Fewing, in Training, $1 to $5; Boxing, Running, Walking, Training, &c.; do. Cricket, &c.; do. Rowing, &c.; do. Swimming, &c.; Wood's Physical Exercises, new edition, $2; Phelan's Game of Billiards, $1.50; Hints on Chess, 75c.; Hoyle's Lexicon, $1.25; Art of Acting, 25c.; Firearms Magistrate, 50c.; Boxing Gloves, $4.50, $5, $6 and $7; Indian Clubs, $5 to $15c., $25; Steel Gaffs, all patterns, per pair, $2. Game Fowl, how to raise them, with description of all breeds, treatment of diseases, mode of breeding, heeling, etc., $5; How Gamblers Win, 75c.; Dead Boxer, 25c.; Pocket Hoyle, 25c.; Brown's History of the American Stage, $3; Barkeeper's Manual, 25c.; Clifford on Jig and Clog Dancing, 25c.; American Card Player, 75c.; Sparrin's Game of Draughts, $1.50; Banting on Corpulency, 75c.; How to Train Performing Dogs, etc., 50c.; How to make Patent Medicines, Perfumery, etc., 50c.; Fishing with Hook and Line, $1; Hawker's Guide, $1; Chess, all sizes, $4.50; Moustaches, 50c.; or any legitimate article, imported or domestic, forwarded. Send P. O. Order or Registered Letter for safety. Enclose stamp for Illustrated Price List, and state whether envelopes for return answers. Game Fowl Dogs and Live Stock of all kinds bought. ☞ Special Agent for NEWBOLD'S London Sporting Prints. LYMAN'S
SELF-ADJUSTING BAT.

In the accompanying cut "A A" represents a hole bored in the larger end of the Bat, in length and size proportioned to the length and weight of the Bat.
"B" represents a piece of Lignum-vitæ closely fitting to the hole, yet sliding freely; "C C" are pieces of cork, tightly fitting and stationary. "D" is a plug driven firmly, and fastened in its place.
The advantages of this over all other Bats, are:
First. It gives the full regulation size without the Extra and Useless weight at the larger end of the Bat, which is removed by the boring.
Second. This extra weight or stationary weight is replaced by a movable or sliding weight, "B," which may be either greater or less than that removed, as may be desired.
Third. This movable or sliding weight is always where most needed in using the Bat, viz.:—When the Bat is elevated for the stroke, the weight is near the centre, giving the striker a more perfect control of bat, and, as the stroke is made, the weight slides toward the end, greatly increasing the weight of the hitter.
Fourth. A much quicker and heavier blow can be given than with the ordinary bat. This is the universal testimony of those who are using them.
Fifth. The stinging or jarring sensation, often felt when the ball is squarely hit near the centre of the ordinary bat, is never experienced in using the Self-adjusting bat.

Introductory Overture.

MONDAY, Aug. 28th, 1871.

We've been to camp meeting, and its not such a bad place as sinners delight in representin' it to be. To be sure it has its objectionable features, but then again it has its attractions. Our dear brothers and sisters were evidently enjoying themselves when we arrived upon the ground. The opinions which we had heard expressed concerning camp meetings led us to suppose that they could with more propriety be termed scamp meetings. Several rather amusing incidents came under our observation while we sojourned among the meek and lowly. To improve "Our Jim's" morals, we "took him into camp," just as the pious multitude had arisen from the dinner table and many of the lambs, having partaken freely of the comfortable provender provided for their physical sustenance and support, sought the refreshing shades of their tents wherein to regenerate the unsaved energies of the inner man. James, perceiving the dear creatures reclining at full length, like regular sinners, asked us if they didn't remind us of a covey of canvas back ducks. We gently chided the youth for his frivolity, and passed on to other scenes, leaving the holy steeped to their own pleasant dreams. It gives me to say that our contrite friends have taken black sheep among their flocks, who bring reproach upon the name and fame of the church. "Jim," like General Grant, is an inveterate smoker; but, unlike the other man, he partakes of but few Partagas, owing to the dereliction of his friends, for James, not having any patronage at his disposal, is never made the recipient of "popular tokens of esteem," and so forth. One of the rules of this camp meeting was that no segar should be sold on the ground, but Jimmy, who knew nothing of the objectionable feature, stepped up to one of the stands, and asked for an American segar, for he always patronises home productions. "We don't sell segars, young man," said the good vender; "its against the rules." "What!" responded the irate youth, "not sell segars! Why what sort of a one-horse meetin' do you call it, when a feller can't enjoy a smoke?" "The rules of the camp must be respected, my dear brother," remarked the law-abiding proprietor of the stand; "we have some nice peaches which we will sell you for five cents each." "Peaches!" exclaimed the unpious boy, "who the hell wants peaches? Look here, old sour gripes, who runs this here tent show?" "Gentle youth, this is no tent show, but a social gathering of pious brethren and sisters, and though I sell you a peach for five cents, I give you a segar for nothing." "Oh, do," says Jim, "I scent a mice; you sell me the peach for fear I might peach on you should you sell me the segar alone." What a blessing, we thought, as we wended our way from the holy peach vender, that we have some men among us who respect and obey the law. Oh, that the various "Rings" in New York could see the importance of observing the law as this pious peach dealer does. One smiling youth, seeing a number of the colored persuasionists of Brother Allen's Chapel repairing to a select spot for a private awakening, exclaimed to his equally wicked companion, "come, Bill, let's go after them and see the darks get the shouts!" James wondered why such degraded youths were permitted to enter the boundaries of this law-abiding camp. There was one group of worshipers who appeared to be unusually happy and joyous, and their pious devotion gave evidence of a deep-seated faith in all that is holy and good. We were so immersed in witnessing the spiritual exercises of this happy assemblage that we had entirely lost sight of our youthful companion. James had observed an organ grinder homeward bound from a neighboring village, and so, with his indomitable spirit of mischief, he engaged the Italian professor to play a little for a "pic nic party" close by, as he called this select assemblage of Christians. What was our surprise, just as a brother had risen for a short exhortation, and while the stillness of the grave rested upon the little meeting, to hear the loud tones of a street organ, as the itinerant musician ground out the unsanctified air of "Lansgan's Ball." The effect was startling. Never before did an organ exert so disorganizing an influence. Completely taken by surprise, some screamed, some swooned, while others essayed to "take to their feet in consternation." The organist, seeing this, imagined that they were going to join in the dance, and therefore ground the louder, while the sinful James, having thus set the camp in an uproar, slunk away with his tail between his legs, leaving the Italian to get out of it the best way he could. Great scandal followed this wicked innovation on the orthodox recreations of the meeting, some of the dear brothers intimating that certain of their own sect were at the bottom of it. We take James to no more camp-meetings.

That same night, on reaching his theatrical boarding house, the boy engaged in a quarrel with the landlady, because his share of the hash had been given to the "heavy villain," a favorite of hers. Jim said some very sharp things to her, and she called him an unbelieving eve's dropper, but he thought that she was in fun until he called her a broad-faced buzzard, when she threw the hot tea urn at his head; then he knew she was in earn-est, and made a masterly retreat, after having created a sensation drama with startling effects..... Talking about the sensation drama, it may not be out of place here to dish up a few rhymes in honor of the gentlemen who are now driving Shakespeare to the wall, and compelling Bulwer, Sheridan Knowles, Robertson, Tom Taylor and others of that ilk to take a back seat in this age of improvement and "new novelties." Our friends will please to remain perfectly quiet while we recite the beautiful lines appended to

YE SENSATION DRAMATIST.

He finds a villain, deep and dark,
One every where about.
Who seeks to take the Heroine
And put the Hero out;
He stirs a locomotive in—
A man to make the fun—
Then seasons it with calcium lights,
And lo! the work is done.

The hero ends up every act
With some "effect" sublime;
The moonlight always strikes the stage
At just the proper time;
Though hostile redskins lurk about,
Our hero does not fear—
He telegraphs the captain
To bring the engine near.

The villain seeks to find old age
With guile's endearing hands,
But not our friend is on his track
To ferret out his plans;
"Across the continent" he flies,
His troubles to increase,
And ends the great sensation up
With powder, love and peace!

Ye dramatist, perhaps, is right
To gauge the public mind—
The kind of "pabulum" they want
Of course he's bound to find.
But hasten, Fate, the moment, when
Our public all may see
"Sensation" and consistency
More perfectly agree.

SCENE IN THE BOWERY STREET.

Head Black Boy.—Hello, Gripsey, where yer goin' ?
Gripsey.—Goin' to Booth's Theatre.
Head Black Boy.—What yer goin' there for? Aint goin' back on the old Bowery, are yer?
Gripsey.—Gone up to see Lotta; bully gal, she is; and don't she play her leetle thought? What! And can't the break down? Oh, he can't be nothin', you can't; oh no, she don't know Lotta from a hole in the ground.
Head Black Boy.—Well, I guess I know her—she aint no sensation.
Gripsey.—Oh, you don't, don't you? I guess he plays with her on the stage!
Head Black Boy.—Oh, I don't know about that; I guess he plays with some of the girls; that's what Dick Darivine, but he aint no sensation; I tell you, Gripsey, if a nigger don't know how to dive on a good song and dance, or pick the banjo, or play the mouth organ, he better buy a waggin, and sell clams.
Head Black.—But it takes every body that 'ats learn them sort of things, don't yer know.
Gripsey.—Well, then, they hadn't orter call themselves actors. Why, look a here, now; who's a Hamlet any more? What's Macbeth or any of them foo-foo plays; nobody don't go to see 'em—cause there hain't nothin' foster 'em. Why that there werry theatre where Lot is at was made for traggerdees and such stuff, but 'twan't no go. I tell you, Johnny, pepils is smart; they know what's what. I bet yer.
Head Black.—Been to see Lil since she got back from her tower?
Gripsey.—Who's that—Lil Thompson?
Head Black.—Yes; been up there yit?
Gripsey.—Way, of course. You better believe. Why Lil's one of the boys, she is. Dogy, and me and Yaller went the first night. Wasn't it a jam though? What! Me and Dogy got so hot we took off our raglans, and some shyster comes up to us, mad like, and says he, "see here, you chaps, we don't allow that air up here; put yer coats on, or go out; yer hain't in no Bowery."
Head Black.—What did Dogy say?
Gripsey.—Dogy see, says he, right out afore all the office holders and winmen, "go to hell; haint this here a free country? Haint a feller a right to go into his shirt sleeves if he wants to?" But twasn't no use. Yaller slings out under his arm, but before Dogy could cheese it the old loppus was onto him, and if it haddint a bin for me and Yaller he'd a got jerkt; it was lively for a minute, and it looked like a reg old fight—put me in mind of the Bowery—the actors and bloodcees all stopped to see the sport, but it diddint come to a fight, and the play went on.
Head Black.—Like it?
Gripsey.—Them gals? Oh, they fist knock the rag off every time. What! Legs! Jimmy, you ought to see 'em. Well, there; you know old Kidley Benders, don't you? Well, Kidley's seen all that's worth seein', and he sez, sez he, "Gripsey, me boy," platin tu em as they stood up like rows of tea pins, "them's legs them is; no drum sticks there, bay, Gripsey!" And they was jam up, sure's yer born.
Head Black.—Stuffed?
Gripsey.—No-o-o! for real.
Head Black.—Like the play much?
Gripsey.—Johnny, we diddent go to see no play; we went to see the girls' legs, and fit with the money.
Head Black.—Shine em? (To a passer by.) Only five cents.
Gripsey.—Come up to Booth's, Johnny.
Head Black.—Shine 'em up—here yar. (Exeunt.)

.....Passing along Bond street the other night we heard a party of glee singers in great glee under the window of a lady fair, who, no doubt, has shut up many a feller's eye with her soft blandishments and deceitful words. There they stood, like broadway statues, with ears erect and eyes fastened upon the dim light which revealed the abiding place of their love, in the fourth story front hall bed-room. And standing there they sang; sang about her eyes and swanlike neck, appealed to the auditors in thrilling tones to "Come where me love lies dreaming," which was a base fabrication, as the young lady at that precious moment was guzzling down the sad relics of a quilted wa'er melon. And, regardless of even the semblance of truth, each one of that noble band proclaimed that "Champagne Charlie was his name;" and then, as if to add insult to injury, the gleeful caboodle, in gentle whispers, asserted, each and every one, that they "dreamt that she dwelt in marble halls, with vassals and serfs at her side," when they knew positively that the domicile before which they were making this midnight assault was a three and a half a week boarding house, on the Canal street plan. And then, finding all efforts to lure the young lady from her lair were vain, and becoming exhausted by the severe strain and struggle and wrestle with the little God of Love, those sinful disturbers of slumber's sweet repose sank down upon the stoop, made one final appeal, by asserting that they were "tired and sleepy too," and wound up by calling to the female up aloft to "put them in their little bed," which scandalous conduct attracted the attention of a meandering policeman, who advised them to go round to Houston street if they wanted to go to bed, instead of disturbing decent people at that time of night. We will now, as a relief to our patient readers, compose a few lines anent

YE GLEE SINGER.

"Friend Tom, can you tell me why glee singers are Like members of boat clubs who ply the light oar?"
"No, Harry," said Tom, "you've asked me in vain,
That is something I never have thought of before—
I give it right up." "Well, then, listen to me,"
Said Harry, "soon you the reason shall know;
When performing, both are timbrel and strain,
Are certain to show themselves off in a row."

City Summary.

J. K. EMMET, as the stellar attraction, inaugurated the fall and winter season at Niblo's Garden on August 21st, acting in "Fritz, our Cousin German," which was performed with the following cast:—

|---|---|
| Fritz | J. K. Emmet |
| Con. Crafton | A. H. Hastings |
| Bobbit | C. H. Morton |
| Bloker | E. K. Collier |
| Smasher | P. Stoner |
| Adolphus Jenkins | Mr. Hilliard |
| Judge Grimlon | Mr. Norton |
| Lawyer Grim | J. W. Brutone |
| Father Metzler | Mr. Jarvis |
| Julius Snow | Mr. Barron |
| Jacob Callous | Mr. Morris |
| Flint | Mr. Jacobs |
| Wintgen | Mr. Wood |
| Mickie Foy | Mr. Adams |
| Lizzie Metzler | Minnie Maddern |
| Katrina | Miss Rose Evans |
| Moppy | Miss Alice Brookes |
| Paulina | Miss Kitty Dowd |
| Angelina | Miss Mary Burbank |
| Julie | Miss Richardson |
| Judy Roche | Miss Rowe |
| Dolly Bloker Metzler | Mrs. Brutone |
| La Belle | Miss Mary Maddern |
| Marie | Miss Marquette |

The performers, with a few exceptions, were strangers to metropolitan audiences, having been selected from various companies throughout the country on account of their adaptability to and peculiar fitness for the characters in which they were severally assigned. Mr. Hastings gave an effective impersonation of Col. Crafton. E. K. Collier and P. Stoner gave a realistic picture of the emigrant runners, and were easy and natural. C. H. Morton, as the concert saloon keeper, Bobbit, acted with care. Mr. Hilliard fully developed the eccentricities of Jenkins. Mr. Norton's make-up for the Judge was very effective, and the acting of that character was marked with vigor. Little Minnie Maddern played Little Fritz with much intelligence. Miss Rose Evans, barring a tendency to be a little too tragic at times, acted Katrina in a pleasing manner. Miss Alice Brooks, the original Moppy, played that part with a fidelity to nature that was charming, and the remaining characters were effectively presented. Mr. Emmet, in his impersonation of Fritz, shows a very marked improvement since he first performed it in this city. It has become mellowed by long practice, and is marked with ease. His songs, dances and performances upon the mouth harmonicon and banjo are innumerable features and might have won enthusiastic applause. On the opening night the attendance was large, nearly every seat in the entire auditorium being filled and the attendance has continued good throughout the week. On Wednesday evening, during the performances of the first act, Miss Rose Evans was suddenly stricken down by some disease of the heart, and, on being borne to the green room, remained in a comatose state some thirty or forty minutes. Miss Josephine Sadlow kindly read the part, and, in the third act, she played the character without having reference to the book, having studied that portion during the performance of the second act, for which she deserves much credit. Miss Rose Evans was sufficiently recovered on Thursday evening to resume her impersonation of Katrina, which she continued throughout the week. Signor Operti composed a medley overture for "Frits" entitled "A Night About New York," which commenced each night's performance and was favorably received. "Frits" is announced for continued representation. Messrs. Jarrett and Palmer continue the managers; J. A. Zimmerman, treasurer, and C. H. Morton, stage manager.

T. S. Rose and the new and original drama in four acts, written expressly for him by John F. Poole, entitled "Shin Fane; or, Shamrock Green," have attracted large audiences to the Bowery Theatre during the past week, the auditorium during the early portion thereof being crowded in every part, while many persons were turned from the doors unable to obtain admission. The drama is composed of a series of incidents relating to the persecution of Ellen Curran, the wife of Pierce Curran, by Martin Doyle, who had caused the false conviction of Pierce on a criminal charge, for which he was transported to Van Dieman's Land. Both had been suitors for Ellen's hand, and because she preferred Pierce, Doyle pursues her for the purpose of revenge and the gratification of an unholy passion. To detail the various scenes through which they pass, would require too much of our space. Suffice it to say that Ellen is continually throwing herself in Doyle's way, and he is ever being foiled at the moment when success appears certain, and the protector of virtue and Ellen, who is constantly "turning up" at the most opportune moment, is Sull Gair, who assumes a variety of disguises and characters to prevent Doyle's villainies being successful. Pierce Curran, after some years absence, returns, when he, too, is marked for Doyle's vengeance. Among the sensational effects, there is a tree struck by lightning, and one of the falling boughs kills one of Doyle's hirelings about to abduct Ellen; Pierce Curran, after being rendered insensible by a blow, is placed near a rock ready for blasting in a stone quarry; the fuse is lighted, and Pierce is saved by Sull Gair, just before the explosion; also a ship is fired to sell Doyle, when the passengers escape in an open boat and are rescued by a passing brig. The drama is crowded with incident to that extent that at times it becomes wearisome, as there is not a sufficient variety of purpose—the constant pursuit of one woman by one man, the former of whom is constantly being rescued, is apt to prove monotonous after some two hours' repetition. The ending of the drama was lame and impotent, and it only appeared to end because it was impossible to devise further disastrous escapes. All the characters had come to New York and all the principals were domiciled at a cheap boarding house in Greenwich street. Doyle suddenly feels the presence of a mysterious influence which warns him of approaching danger, although not the slightest reason appears therefor, when he suddenly resolves to go to Chicago, and in the execution of that purpose we find him at the Erie railroad wharf, near the foot of Chambers street, calculating that in twenty minutes more he will be on his journey. Suddenly Pierce Curran rushes on, seizes him by the throat, calls for the police, who do appear, and Doyle is given into custody. All the other characters, having fortunately been in the neighborhood, rush on, Doyle breaks from the officers, jumps on the top of a dry goods case, draws a pistol and is about to fire it at Pierce Curran, when somebody, whom we could not ascertain, shoots him and he tumbles down behind the dry goods case and the curtain descends upon the close of the drama, leaving the audience to picture to themselves the ultimate fate of the other characters. It was as well acted as possible for such a piece to be. Mr. Rigge, as Sull Gair and the various characters assumed by him, was felicitous in his delineations. His brogue is rich, he has a keen appreciation of humor, and the characters were strongly individualized. His impersonation of Mrs. Hanbury was especially praiseworthy, his make up being well calculated to deceive. E. L. Tilton, who made his first appearance on August 21st, acted Michael Curran, an elderly Irishman evidently modelled after Dan O'Carroll, in a conscientious manner. Pierce Curran was acted by W. Marden in a vigorous and manly style. P. Connolly acted Martin Doyle and invested that character with much vindictiveness and fiendishness generally, while Mr. Barry's acting of his accomplice, Shan Rhue, was a deserving effort. M. B. Pike made quite a character of Phil Hallegan, and there was a large number of small characters having no intimate connection with the plot, but used to fill up the picture, to which due attention was paid by their impersonators. Mrs. W. G. Jones, who had a large share of the weight of the piece to carry, was thoroughly correct and effective as Ellen Curran. Miss Mattie Sackett added much to the light of the picture by her joyous, vivacious acting of Molly Sullivan. Miss Polly Booth and Mrs. Connolly gave prominence to the small characters that fell to their lot. There was little, if anything, done for the piece in the way of scenery. In the shipwreck scene, after the ship is fired, that scene is withdrawn, and a view of the open sea is presented, with the passengers in a boat and a large brig is seen bearing down to their rescue. On Thursday evening, after the large brig had made a complete circuit of the stage in the most realistic style and was brought broadside to the boat, to take the rescued passengers aboard, the brig capsized towards the audience, spilling its crew, and the masts were thrown completely across the small boat, much to the momentary consternation of its occupants. As the curtain fell upon the tableau the audience were left in doubt whether the boat rescued the crew of the brig or vice versa. The drama, which was preceded during the week by a comic one entitled "Cavaliers and Roundheads," and Dutch songs by Tom Bo'as, was withdrawn after the performance of Saturday night. This evening, Aug. 28th, the fall and winter season is to be inaugurated and G. Swaine Buckley will commence an engagement, playing in a sensational drama entitled "On the Track."

THE COMPANY engaged to support Lawrence Barrett for his New York State and New England tour, which commences on Sept. 6th, are requested, through an advertisement, to assemble for rehearsal on Aug. 31st.

MESSRS. HOFFMANN & LOWELL publish a card in another column requesting the company engaged by them for the season commencing Sept. 4th, to assemble for rehearsal at M. Simmonds' office, in this city, on Aug. 31st.

ASHLEY'S ROUGES AND OVERFLOWING AUDIENCES may be chronicled as the result of the second week's performances of the Lydia Thompson Burlesque Troupe. They have acted during the past week in "Blue Beard," now presented in two acts, and constituting the entire evening's performances. As the various members of the company have become better acquainted with the idiosyncracies of each other, the performances show a marked improvement as regards the evenness thereof. Every evening, long before eight o'clock, every seat in the auditorium has been sold and ere the curtain rose all the available space for standing room has been fully occupied. The success of the present engagement far surpasses any hitherto played by the troupe in this city. The new members of the company improve upon acquaintance, and are, we think, destined to become favorites. Notwithstanding the great success that has attended the performances of "Blue Beard," it is to be withdrawn after Sept. 2d, to give place to the "Princess of Trebizonde" on the 4th. The present engagement is limited to four weeks more, as the company will commence at the Boston Theatre, Boston, Mass., Sept. 25th.

G. L. DAVIS and his troupe of performing dogs have attracted no little attention during the past week, by their sagacious performances at a variety hall upon Broadway.

THE SAN FRANCISCO MINSTRELS are announced to commence their regular fall and winter season at their hall on Broadway, this evening, August 28th. Refreshed by a season of rest and recreation, we may anticipate that they will give us novelties during the present season, and not rely upon old acts, however popular they may be. Billy Birch and Charley Backus will be found at their usual positions on the ends, the dignified Bernard will resume his post as interlocutor, and the sweet voiced tenor, Wambold, will be found at his post. Among the other performers will be found Bobby Newcomb, Charles Gibbons, J. Cheever and E. Kennedy. In the vocal corps, besides Wambold, will be Dwyer, Templeton, Oberist and Snattuck. The orchestra will comprise Donniker, Schmidt, Salsena, Buckner, Juch and Nortier. Comedians, West and the Buffalo Boys.

FRANK EVANS has been engaged to travel with the W. Horace Lingard combination, during the coming season.

MARK SMITH is organizing a company to play the old comedies, for a tour throughout the country. W. H. Bowdlich will be the business manager.

THE ATTENDANCE AT BOOTH'S THEATRE has fallen off very much during the past week. Lotta has been playing her old piece of "Little Nell and the Marchioness." The public require novelty.

M. W. CANNING and wife, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Florence, and Miss Lizzie Wilmore, arrived in this city from England, on August 21st, looking much improved by their trans-Atlantic tour.

NEWCOMB AND ARLINGTON'S MINSTRELS are announced to commence their season at their new Twenty-eighth street Opera House, on September 4th, with a new and powerful organization.

THE SEASON AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE will be inaugurated on Saturday evening, September 2d, when Mr. and Mrs. Bandmann will perform in "Narcissa" and "The Happy Pair." On Monday evening, the 4th, will be produced for the first time, a dramatization of the unfinished novel of the late Charles Dickens, called the "Mystery of Edwin Drood," which will be entitled "Jasper." Mr. and Mrs. Bandmann will appear in the leading roles. The following is a list of the stock company and officers of the this theatre:—The Misses Henrietta Osborne, Edith Chaillis, Emma Cline, Frances Jackson, Emma Keogh, Lena Thurber and Marion Fiske; Messrs. Mark Smith, Lewis Baker, M. W. Fiske, E. F. Thorne, Harry Eytinge, C. W. Barry, T. J. Hind, W. H. Pope, C. T. Parsloe, J. B. Brutone, George Johnson, J. McEvoy, D. Barclay and J. Jones. Managers, Lewis Baker and John F. Cole; business manager, T. E. Morris; scenic artist, G. W. Dayton; leader of orchestra, Mr. Tissington; machinist and properties, S. Wallis; and calcium lights, J. K. Simpson.

MISS ADA HARLAND commenced an engagement at Wood's Museum on Monday evening, August 21st, when was produced a new romantic and sensation drama in four acts, entitled "Lola," which was acted with the following cast:—

|---|---|
| Lola | Ada Harland |
| Julio | |
| White Lily | |
| Joe Merton | |
| La Belle Inconna | |
| Evelyn Blair | G. C. Boniface |
| Antel Carmo | Kyrle Bellew |
| Enrique Ibanez | W. H. Wilder |
| Pedro Zarate | Harry Rynar |
| C. D. Dash | Mr. Sheiden |
| Chirato | Lewis Baumann |
| Skinjack | H. Stewart |
| Cedar Jake | G. C. Charles |
| Col. Sedley | R. J. Lewis |
| Jack Lunn | Eddy Coyle |
| Dulong | L. R. Willard |
| Wignel | Wm. Major |
| Harry | A. Spicer |
| Pistol Marker | J. L. Cameron |
| Waiter | M. Harrigon |
| Ethel Montjoy | Jennie Arnott |
| The Widow | Kate Rynar |
| Lucky Dodge | Alice Atherton |
| Gila | Jennie Saterlee |

The action of the first act occurs in South America, the second at sea, the third on the plains of the United States, and the fourth at Paris, France, under the Commune. The story, which we need not relate in detail, is founded upon the incident of a young girl, Lola, who passionately loves Evelyn Blair, who does not return her love. She follows his fortunes in a variety of disguises, saves his life a number of times, and proves the inconstancy of the woman he is about to wed. Upon this thread are strung a series of incidents, some effective and some otherwise, which follow each other in rapid succession, the scene of the action changing as rapidly. The drama affords but little scope for acting, save with one or two characters. Miss Harland was not altogether satisfactory in the personation of the five characters she assumed; Julio, Lola and Joe Merton, a billiard sport, being the most successful. The music of the drama, which had been specially arranged and adapted therefor by Signor Operti, of Niblo's Garden, was so distorted in the rendering that the intended effect was much marred. The tropical scene used in the first act was handsome and appropriate, which we cannot say of those presented during the remainder of the piece. A realistic effect at the end of the second act of a steamer being struck by a floating iceberg and sinking, was attempted, but proved only partially successful. The auditorium was well filled on the occasion of the first night, although many of the characters appeared at the close of the act looking dashed about by the waves. Some of the characters wore the same costumes throughout the play. G. C. Boniface, who had been specially engaged, acted Evelyn Blair with much earnestness and effect. F. Evans, who acted the villain of the drama, Luigi Catroni, and Kyrle Bellew, as the grave Count, remained in comatose state some thirty or forty minutes. Miss Josephine Sadlow kindly read the part, and, in the third act, she played the character without having reference to the book, having studied that portion during the performance of the second act, for which she deserves much credit. Miss Rose Evans was sufficiently recovered on Thursday evening to resume her impersonation of Katrina, which she continued throughout the week. Signor Operti composed a medley overture for "Frits" entitled "A Night About New York," which commenced each night's performance and was favorably received. "Frits" is announced for continued representation. Messrs. Jarrett and Palmer continue the managers; J. A. Zimmerman, treasurer, and C. H. Morton, stage manager.

All the other characters, having fortunately been in the neighborhood, rush on, Doyle breaks from the officers, jumps on the top of a dry goods case, draws a pistol and is about to fire it at Pierce Curran, when somebody, whom we could not ascertain, shoots him and he tumbles down behind the dry goods case and the curtain descends upon the close of the drama, leaving the audience to picture to themselves the ultimate fate of the other characters. It was as well acted as possible for such a piece to be. Mr. Rigge, as Sull Gair and the various characters assumed by him, was felicitous in his delineations. His brogue is rich, he has a keen appreciation of humor, and the characters were strongly individualized. His impersonation of Mrs. Hanbury was especially praiseworthy, his make up being well calculated to deceive. E. L. Tilton, who made his first appearance on August 21st, acted Michael Curran, an elderly Irishman evidently modelled after Dan O'Carroll, in a conscientious manner. Pierce Curran was acted by W. Marden in a vigorous and manly style. P. Connolly acted Martin Doyle and invested that character with much vindictiveness and fiendishness generally, while Mr. Barry's acting of his accomplice, Shan Rhue, was a deserving effort. M. B. Pike made quite a character of Phil Hallegan, and there was a large number of small characters having no intimate connection with the plot, but used to fill up the picture, to which due attention was paid by their impersonators. Mrs. W. G. Jones, who had a large share of the weight of the piece to carry, was thoroughly correct and effective as Ellen Curran. Miss Mattie Sackett added much to the light of the picture by her joyous, vivacious acting of Molly Sullivan. Miss Polly Booth and Mrs. Connolly gave prominence to the small characters that fell to their lot. There was little, if anything, done for the piece in the way of scenery. In the shipwreck scene, after the ship is fired, that scene is withdrawn, and a view of the open sea is presented, with the passengers in a boat and a large brig is seen bearing down to their rescue. On Thursday evening, after the large brig had made a complete circuit of the stage in the most realistic style and was brought broadside to the boat, to take the rescued passengers aboard, the brig capsized towards the audience, spilling its crew, and the masts were thrown completely across the small boat, much to the momentary consternation of its occupants. As the curtain fell upon the tableau the audience were left in doubt whether the boat rescued the crew of the brig or vice versa. The drama, which was preceded during the week by a comic one entitled "Cavaliers and Roundheads," and Dutch songs by Tom Bo'as, was withdrawn after the performance of Saturday night. This evening, Aug. 28th, the fall and winter season is to be inaugurated and G. Swaine Buckley will commence an engagement, playing in a sensational drama entitled "On the Track."

THE COMPANY engaged to support Lawrence Barrett for his New York State and New England tour, which commences on Sept. 6th, are requested, through an advertisement, to assemble for rehearsal on Aug. 31st.

MESSRS. HOFFMANN & LOWELL publish a card in another column requesting the company engaged by them for the season commencing Sept. 4th, to assemble for rehearsal at M. Simmonds' office, in this city, on Aug. 31st.

SAM RYAN commenced an engagement at Tony Pastor's, on Monday evening, Aug. 21st, appearing in the "Octoroon," which was repeated on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. On Thursday and Friday, the "Hidden Hand" was performed, and on Saturday, for the benefit of Mr. Ryan, the "Fair of Mullingar," a grand olio, and the "Artful Dodger," composed the bill.

THOMAS E. MORRIS, who is well known in this city, has been secured by the managers of the Gr

THE COMPANY ENGAGED FOR THE TREMONT OPERA HOUSE, Galveston, Texas, will find in our advertising columns a few months with regard to their time of leaving for that city, the route thither, the conveyance of baggage and where to report to obtain their passage tickets.

Musical.

A TENOR SINGER, who can play B flat cornet or flute, is wanted by H. B. Horton, who advertises.

J. N. GOODALL, solo violinist, gave a concert at Milford, Pa., on Aug. 24th, in the Pike County House, before a good audience. On Sept. 4th he commences a two weeks' engagement at the St. James Theatre, Boston, Mass. Managers can address him care of this office.

"THE HEATHEN CHINEE" is the title of a new comic song just issued by Mr. Robert M. De Witt, of this city, and our rat-masticating fellow citizen has seldom been put to such an amusing purpose as in this song; but read the advertisement, then you'll know how it is yourself.

SPAULDING'S CLASSICAL AND COMICAL CONCERT COMPANY includes the following performers:—The Misses Georgie Dean Spaulding, harpist; Kittie Angell, character vocalist; Lotta Gardner, vocalist; Messrs. Harry Eades, comedian; W. F. Spaulding, harpist; W. H. Stanley, manager and agent; William Stanton, treasurer, and W. P. Spaulding, proprietor. Their business in the state of Maine, where they are now performing, is reported excellent.

DEXTER SMITH has been commissioned to write a hymn for the World's Peace Jubilee to be held in Boston, Mass., next June.

THE HOLMAN OPERA TROUPE performed in Cornwall, Canada, August 14th; Brockville, 15th; Coburg, 16th; Linsay, 17th, and Peterboro, 18th, closing their season at the latter place.

WHILE THE ALLEGHANIANS were visiting Watkins Glen, N. Y., last week, Miss Marie Packard, the soprano, while ascending the "Narrow Pass" in "Glen Difficulty," near "Shadow Gorge," slipped from a shelving rock a distance of some feet, but, by a strong presence of mind, she caught a fast hold to the embankment till assistance came. She had a miraculous escape from being precipitated hundreds of feet below.

SEVERAL NEW SONGS, suitable for a male soprano voice, have been published by Eisman and Hafner, and they advertise that they will send them by mail on receipt of price.

THE GREAT WESTERN LIGHT GUARD BAND of Chicago, Ill., with an orchestra of thirty pieces, are announced to give a concert in Peoria, Ill., Sept. 1st.

JOSEPH RAMBTTI, who plays the flute in the orchestra of the Boston Museum, Boston, Mass., has held his seat there since the opening of that establishment, and it is said that during that time he has never been absent from a single performance. He is a model flute player.

Variety Halls.

WILD'S OPERA HOUSE, SYRACUSE, N. Y., is announced to reopen for the fall and winter season on Monday evening, Aug. 28th. Our correspondent writes on Aug. 25th, as follows:—"During the summer vacation the auditorium has been entirely renovated and refitted throughout, which will entitle it to the credit of being one of the finest places of amusement west of New York city. The following is the list of the company engaged for the opening, and the officers of the house:—Frank Wild, lessee and manager; C. E. Blanchett, business manager; R. V. Ferguson, stage manager; G. W. Jester, the man with the talking hand'; Add. Weaver and son, negro comedians; Orville Pitcher, eccentric comedian; Andy McKee, song and dance; Charles Kimic, Dutch comedian; J. H. O'Neil, song and dance; N. B. Shimer, negro comedian; Miss Carrie Avery, comedienne; the Weston Sisters, song and dance, and duettists; Miss Nellie Whitney, song and dance; Miss Jessie Howard, vocalist and protean actress. Many of the above named artists are favorites with a Syracuse audience. The manager intends to change the entire programme every other night during the season. Refreshments of all kinds will be excluded from the theatre, neither will there be a wine room attached, consequently ladies can attend any performance. It is Mr. Wild's intention to maintain the same popularity and success for this house as it met with last season."

BUSINESS AT THE METROPOLITAN HALL, Washington, D. C., the past week, was not very good, in consequence of the appearance in town of the Robinson circus company, which rather monopolized the attention of amusement seekers. A very good bill was offered, however, and stage manager Thacher pro tem. gave evidence of his ability in managing the stage satisfactorily. Mr. Gaynor, through sickness, was unable to appear on the first two evenings of the week and the regular first part was dispensed with. He appeared on Wednesday evening, however, and during the remainder of the week. Since Mr. Porter has been in Brooklyn, attending to the opening of the new Opera House there, Miss Minnie Clare has filled the position of interrogator in the minstrel scene. She has acquitted herself admirably, and is deserving of much praise. The engagement of all the members of the company closed on Aug. 26th, and on to-morrow evening, 28th, an entire new company appear as follows:—Miss Ida Freeman, M'lle Patti, Miss Kate Brooks, Miss Josephine Walby, Joe Mack, Dan Howard, Patsy Shay, and the Jerome Brothers. So wrote our correspondent "Novice," on Aug. 27th.

TONY PASTOR and his variety company performed at Richmond, Ind., August 21st; Dayton, O., 22d; Springfield, 23d; Columbus, 24th and 25th; Greenville, 26th, and is billed ahead as follows:—Steubenville, 29th; Pittsburgh, Pa., 30th, 31st, Sept. 1st and 2d; Johnstown, 4th; Altoona, 5th; and Trenton, N. J., 7th.

SHERIDAN AND MACK, character vocalists, who at last advices were playing at the Alhambra Theatre, San Francisco, Cal., are noticed as follows by the Alta of that city:

Sheridan and Mack do not follow the beaten track in blacking their faces to present their characters, but use the same means employed in legitimate comedy, and the improvement is appreciated; though very young men they succeed capitally in impersonating several distinct characters (including a very old couple, "My Old Wife and I,") during the few minutes they are on the stage.

THE FRONT STREET THEATRE COMIQUE, under the continued management of W. E. Sinn, and the stage management of George R. Edeson, is announced to open for the fall and winter season on August 28th. During the vacation the auditorium has been entirely redecorated and refitted, and new chandeliers and gas fixtures have been added. The following performers are announced for the opening:—Mlle. Rosina Pagani, premiere danseuse; the Misses Helene Smith, dancer, and song and dance; Susie Summerfield, dancer; Emma Devere, dancer; Emily Vaughan, dancer, from Europe, her first appearance in America; Tillie Antonio, dancer; Emma Morton, vocalist and statuesque artist, and Emma Harrison, dancer; Messrs. Rollin Howard, composer, vocalist and burlesque artist, together with his partner, Charley Sturges, song and dance; Prof. Campbell, with his American Theatre of Arts, containing 32 life-like mechanical figures; Prof. Madison, Punch and Judy; C. A. Gardner, the original "Dutch Charley;" the Arabian brothers, acrobats; Bryan O'Lynn, vocalist and jig dancer; Bobby Daly, song and dance; and Frank H. Nelson, actor and author. This list comprises the new faces. The following old favorites are announced as having been retained:—the Misses Sallie Mason, vocalist and actress; Bettie and Sophie Remmelsburg, premiere dancers; Kate Wilson, Maggie Wesner, Dora Zanfretta, Clara Bogart, Mary Bogart, Hotale Howard, Emma Ellinger, Annie Jackson, Beatrice Ball, and Hattie Edeson, corypheses; Messrs. George Edeson, comedian and pantomimist; Walter Benn, Nicolo Norton, Joseph Whittaker, B. S. Hodges, W. H. Quinn, and A. McDowell. The orchestra will be under the direction of Charles Reinhardt, and the ballet under Signor Cardella.

J. L. DAVIS and his performing dogs commence an engagement at the Howard Athenæum, Boston, Mass., September 4th; at the Capitol Theatre, Albany, N. Y., 18th, and Trimble's Varieties, Pittsburgh, Pa., October 2d.

MISS NELLIE LOVE'S Theatre Comique performed at Hazleton, Pa., three nights, commencing August 21st, being the first hall show that has visited that town during seven months.

THE DE LAVE FAMILY, including Lila and Zoe, gymnasts, were the chief attractions at the Mont-Royal Rink, St. Jean Baptiste Village, Canada, during the past week. Among the other features were Mlle. Jannette Rose, song and dance; Mons. Champagne, clog and jig dancer; Geo. Lavender, slack wire; the Leroux Brothers, horizontal bar and double trapeze, and Billy Hawkins, clog.

BEN. WHEELER, Irish comedian and vocalist; Elise De Courcy, serio-comic vocalist, and Master Bennie, character vocalist, at present performing at the Globe Theatre, Brooklyn, N. Y., are prepared to arrange for time. See advertisement.

ADELINE FONTAINEBLEAU, gymnast and ceiling walker, who has several specialties, advertises that she can be engaged from the middle of November.

AT THE WALNUT STREET THEATRE, Kansas City, Mo., the following persons have been engaged to appear on the 28th of August:—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McDonald, F. J. McLaughlin, F. B. Stancelle, J. Wilson and wife, Fitzgerald, Sprague and Mack, Mlle. Massile, the Misses St. Leon, Ed. Chrisco, Johnny Palmer, Geo. Burgess, Annie Florence, Eva Brent and I. C. W. Taylor. Extensive alterations have been made and a large gallery has been added, which greatly improves the appearance of the theatre.

G. W. JESTER, ventriloquist, who can be addressed care of this office, has vacant dates after Oct. 2d.

END MEN, leader of orchestra, lady jig dancer, serio-comic vocalist and other talent, both male and female, are wanted for Mad. Rentz's Female Minstrels. Address M. B. Leavitt in care of this office.

A LADY VOCALIST, a danseuse, a clown and comic singer and other performers are wanted for a variety and pantomime troupe by Billy Cotton, who advertises.

THE GAIETY VAUDEVILLE COMPANY, under the management of Cool Burgess, with Miss Agnes Sutherland, Scottish vocalist, and R. V. Ferguson, character vocalist, as the chief attractions, closed the season at Brentford, C. W., August 20th.

TWO VOCALISTS and an end man are wanted for Savage and Flood's Parlor Concert Hall, Lawrence, Mass. Address as per advertisement.

HARRY ROBINSON, versatile comedian, who has several specialties, can be engaged. His address is care of this office.

SILLY MELVILLE, female impersonator, and burlesque and wench dancer, advertises that he can be engaged.

AT THE ALHAMBRA, Philadelphia, the usual variety programme has been presented during the past week to fair audiences. The re-appearance of Miss Amy De Brent, in her animated and piquant serio-comic songs, was an additional source of attraction to the frequenters of this estab lishment, where she is an established favorite. On Aug. 28th, Miss Amanda Pierce, on the revolving globe; Johnny Shields, jig dancer, and M'lle Flora, will make their first appearance here.

FROM CINCINNATI our correspondent sends us the following intelligence, dated Aug. 25th:—"There is very little new to chronicle at the Race Street Varietes. All of the companies here have been thinned down to micrescopic proportions, nearly all the performers having been seduced off into traveling companies during the season of county fairs. M. A. Grimn left the Race Street company for that purpose at the close of last week, and in consequence, Fred. McAvoy has taken the tamborine end, faced by Charley Cortell as bones, with James Finley to do middle business. Belle Williams takes a benefit this evening, and as she is a genuinely good singer, she will probably meet with a liberal rally. Besides those above mentioned, Mrs. Fred McAvoy and Nellie Halloway appear. Business has been rather slender.....Tom Warfield, Mlle. Augusta, and Mlle. Gertrude, of the company at the Olympic Theatre, have gone off to the fairs, the rest of the troupe remaining unchanged. Charley Sullivan is acting as stage manager, and a fair business is being done..... P. H. Seamoe, the ventriloquist and comedian, opened at Apollo Hall this week, and his 'Peter Honts Family,' a sort of 'Punch and Judy' show, has taken extremely well among the Germans.....The traveling companies of Sherwood & Co. and Tim. Woodruff, of which lists were given last week, started hence on Monday, the former opening at Washington C. H., Ohio, and the latter at Newcastle, Ind. Besides these, a third party has been organized, called 'Johnson's Combination,' and embracing Johnny Weaver, Tom Warfield, Frank Rivers, John Rivers and his trick dog 'Nettie,' Mlle. Augusta, ballet-bit and song and dance lady, and Mlle. Gertrude, ballet. They have Davey Brunton's brass band and orchestra, and were to make their first stand at Centerville, Ind., and go from thence to Kingstown, and then to Connersville."

AT DENIER'S NOVELTY THEATRE, Titusville, Pa., the Misses Estelle Hyams, Maggie Willett, Jennie Hyams, Messrs. H. W. Mitchell, Sam. R. Orme and Sherman were the chief features of the past week. Talent is wanted. For the address of the manager, see our advertising columns.

THE ST. JAMES THEATRE, Boston, Mass., commenced the season very favorably, as will be seen by the following notices copied from the press of that city:—

THE ST. JAMES.—The late Gymnasium, formerly the Continental, suffers a new name this season, and with its third christening appears metamorphosed in thoroughly ideal not one of its old friends will recognize in its elegant interior the South End Theatre of former years. Messrs. J. C. Trowbridge & Co., who have leased the establishment with the purpose of making it a first class variety theatre, have added wonderfully to the attractions of the auditorium. A tasteful combination of colors, in which blue and gold are prominent, brightens up the house, which has been thoroughly renovated in every respect, made more convenient, safe and pleasant, and dressed out to please the eye as well as to afford comfort to the audience. In its spick and span new fixings, the St. James is a model of a theatre, neat and trim in every respect. The efforts of the new management were rewarded by an audience last evening, which, in point of numbers as well as of appreciative enthusiasm, made the opening performance an assured success, with promise even of better things to come. We are safe in saying that there will never be a larger audience at the St. James than that which "assisted" at the opening; for no more could be contained either in gallery, floor or aisles. Men looked over each other's shoulders and stood about the doorway unable to enter, so great was the press. But if many came from curiosity to see the initial performance at a new theatre, few went away without an unpretentious sense of the fact that, for a variety entertainment, it was a notable success. Here was indeed variety, and plenty of it; never be a larger audience at the St. James than that which "assisted" at the opening; for no more could be contained either in gallery, floor or aisles. Men looked over each other's shoulders and stood about the doorway unable to enter, so great was the press. But if many came from curiosity to see the initial performance at a new theatre, few went away without an unpretentious sense of the fact that, for a variety entertainment, it was a notable success. Here was indeed variety, and plenty of it; and with hardly an exception the various performances were most excellent in their way. Too much credit cannot be given to Mr. Cavanagh and his aids for the smoothness with which it went off. None of the waits usually inseparable from a first performance occurring to check the flow of amusement. The orchestra, under Mr. Fred. Von Olker, bowed and blew with excellent effect, and the applause of the audience indicated an undeniable success for the new variety theatre.—Boston Post.

Of the second week's performance the Times of Aug. 22d says:—

ST. JAMES THEATER.—There was not a vacant seat or a square inch of available standing room at this establishment last evening. The new programme introduced, among other artists, the dashing young comedienne, Miss Dellie Bidwell, who was very cordially received. Miss Bidwell personated Gertrude in "The Loan of a Lover," to fine acceptance. The remainder of the evening was occupied by the Freeman Sisters, the Leslie Brothers, Turner and Lester, the Schreiter Sisters, Miss Jennie Engle, the Daily Brothers, Billy Carter, Mlle. Venturoli, Jerry Cohan, Harry Bloodgood, Alfred and George Mon, the skaters, Miss Millie Turnour and Charley Abbott's Pantomime Company—the latter played a piece entitled "Goosey Gander."

PEDANTO, gymnast, etc., opens at the St. James Theatre, Boston, Mass., on Sept. 4th, and can be engaged after the 18th.

R. L. GRATHAM advertises for double song and dance men, a B flat horn player, and a violinist.

JERRY COHAN, Irish comique, who can be addressed care of this office, can be engaged for his specialties, &c.

ARTISTS are wanted for the varieties, St. Joseph, Mo., now open for the fall and winter season. Address as per advertisement.

AT SMITH'S OPERA HOUSE, East Saginaw, Mich., the new appearances this week are Alex. Zanfretta, tight rope artist; Lillie De Berg, Den Howe and Master Johnny. Artists are wanted.

ARTISTS are wanted for Green's Mocking Bird Female Minstrels, now organizing in Montreal, Canada, for the fall and winter season. See advertisement.

WELLS' THEATRE COMIQUE, Peoria, Ill., will be opened to the public about the 15th of September, under the sole proprietorship and management of Mr. J. Clark Wells, former manager of the Varieties and Theatre Comique, of this city. The hall is located on Adams street, immediately opposite the court house, and is being fitted up in the best manner. A first class variety company has been engaged.....The Varieties still continues to draw paying houses, and gives good satisfaction. The feature of the past week has been Miss Nellie Fiorance, song and dance, and jig, who appeared on Aug. 23d, and was greeted with an enthusiastic reception, but would positively appear on Monday, August 28th. The rather lengthy opening programme concluded with the drama entitled "The Convict's Vengeance," in which Mr. H. W. Williams infused considerable energy into the role of Harold Hawk, and Billy Barry gave a most amusing portraiture of Joe Lobkins. Every Wednesday night has been set apart as "Ladies' Night," and matinees will be given every Wednesday and Saturday afternoons at this establishment.

THE CAPITOL THEATRE, Albany, N. Y., is announced to be opened on August 28th. This establishment has been entirely remodeled and renovated. A new curtain and scenery have been painted, the stage enlarged and two new and elegant private boxes have been added. The initiatory combination will be followed during the season by engagements of all prominent dramatic, pantomimic and novelty stars, and all first-class attractions in the profession. Mr. Denier assures the public that his gem of a theatre, on which he has expended some $6,000, shall be conducted on a first-class principle. The following are the officers and artists thus far engaged:—Tony Denier, lessee and proprietor; Walter Keeble, business and acting manager. J. H. Milburn, Sydney Franks, Frank Dillon, Harry Buckley, Hugh Hagerty, J. J. Riley, John Kelly, Arabian Bros., Guy Bros., Ed. Barker, Charles Kimic, Moe Bros., Jos. M. Sloan, Andy Morris, Quilter and Goodrich, Prof. Davis, Geo. Buckley, Geo. Leavock, W. T. Melville, Jas. Cavanagh, M. T. Carey, Mlle. Leah, Jennie Benson, la petite Benson, Little Vic, Lucy Adams, Linda De Rhona, Emma Alford, Mabel Leigh, Maggie McDonald, Miles. Auriol and Donaldson. The bill for the opening night will be "Sarah's Young Man," in olio, and the "White Boys of Ireland's "Jack and Gill," a pantomime, is in active preparation. So wrote our correspondent on August 26th.

AT THE VARIETIES THEATRE, Pittsburgh, Pa., the attendance has been moderately large the past week. Andy McKee is the only new appearance. He is an excellent song and dance artist. A very long and enjoyable programme has been nightly presented, and nearly every act has been encored. Walter Bray left this theatre on the 23d. Ben. Mason has been slightly indisposed for the last few days, and has not been doing full duty. He is recovering and will be all right next week. The engagements of a number of artists expire on the 26th. They will be replaced by the Majiltons and Mlle. Ventnroli, whose first appearance will occur on Aug. 28th. So wrote our correspondent.

THE MOZART VARIETY COMBINATION, F. Engle, proprietor, and Harry Bernard, manager, performed at Hamilton, Ont., August 23d and 23d, and Toronto 24th and 25th. The company is as follows:—Mlle. Leotta, vocalist; Mlle. Olivia, dansense; Alice Bateman, clog; Carrie Sheldon, serio-comic; De Vere, protean artist; Johnny Shay, song and dance; Billy Noonan, clog; Harry Bernard, comedian; T. Cardiff, cornet soloist; J. A. Bamberg, violinist; C. Antoine and Prof. Benton.

MISS LIZZIE SHERMAN, who is at present in Buffalo, N. Y., is slowly recovering from a sprained ankle which she received while performing a wooden shoe dance on July 31st. See her card in another column.

AT THE THEATRE COMIQUE, Cleveland, O., the chief attractions of the past week have been Frank Lum, Frank Dillon, Fred Seigle, John Keegan, Dan Morris, John H. Carle, Mlle. Celestine, the Misses Lizzie Mitchell, Jennie Jerome, Mollie Russell, Emilie Seigle, Josie Morris and Emma Marsh.

AT THE THEATRE COMIQUE, Bay City, Mich., the Misses Maude Le Moine, Sadie Rogers, Lena Clark, Annie Sherwood, Lucy Wilis, Annie West, Little Rose, Messrs. Billy Hasson, Ed. Judge, Dick Melville and Gus Clarke were the chief attractions of the past week. By reference to our advertising columns it will be seen that talent is wanted by H. H. Milburn, protean vocalist, can be engaged. For further particulars read the advertisement.

AT THE OLYMPIC THEATRE, Chicago, Ill., paying houses and good performances are the order of the night. Bowman and Harris continue popular, Miss Walby's fancy and skipping rope dances are highly admired, Viola Cliffton's ballads are well rendered and received with applause, La belle Helene, Luin Cullum, J. Gulick and Dick Parker are well liked. Frank Frayne, Fernando Fleury and Frank Woods closed on the 19th. Mr. Frayne and Clara Butler open in Detroit on the 26th. Billy Allen opens at same place on the 28th. So wrote our correspondent on Aug. 25th.

Negro Minstrelsy.

SANFORD'S NEW OPERA HOUSE, Philadelphia, re-opened on Saturday evening, August 26th, and judging from the enthusiastic applause and numerous encores, the entertainment provided, evidently afforded the highest satisfaction to the spectators, who crammed every part of the building. The auditorium has been enlarged, and a wonderful and extensive alteration made since last season, the house being colored and re-decorated, and now presents a bright and cheerful aspect. Very comfortable chairs are provided in the orchestra, and the proper means have been adopted for securing a plentiful supply of fresh air. The following is a list of the company engaged on the opening night, but several important accessions will be made this week to the troupe:—Eph Horn, Jr., bones and banjoist; Sam S. Sanford, tambourine; Paul Berger, Ole Bull Myers, J. E. Dougherty, Jos. Barth, J. Paul, Jos. Saunders, J. Sterling, A. Holmes, A. Davis, Prof. Clarke, and J. Mitchell, who appear in the first part; and in the olio, Miss Rosalinda, serio-comic vocalist; La Petite Emma, danseuse; James W. Sanford, comedian and pantomimist; and Master Freddie, negro violinist, also appears. Sam. Sanford's enterprising spirit in providing such an attractive place of entertainment entitles him to the liberal support of his neighbors and the public.

THE DEARBORN MINSTRELS—late Manning's—opened the regular season in Chicago, Aug. 21st, under favorable auspices, the house being packed, and the houses have been crowded every night since. During the recess the auditorium has been renovated and freshened. At the curtain rolled up, the old favorites, Ben Cotton, J. H. Kemble and C. S. Fredericks were clamorously applauded. The company has been considerably altered since their last season here. The quartet is greatly improved, the instrumental part remains the same, but the comedy portion, judging from what we have seen, is not as good as heretofore. J. W. Lamont and C. Markham are superior singers and will prove valuable acquisitions. Peasely and Fitzgerald are fine dancers, but do not appear to be conversant with music. Stevie Rogers' clog dance came in for a full share of applause. The bill is replete with novelties. So wrote our correspondent, on Aug. 23th.

THE MANNING TROUBLE.—As considerable has been said and published touching the domestic relations of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Manning, we are requested to give publicity to the following card from Mr. M.:—

WALNUT STREET HOUSE, CINCINNATI, Aug. 23d, 1871.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.—The public have been apprised through various newspaper publications, of recent events in my domestic life. Which I should not care to bring again into notice were it not that, in their detail, many false representations have been made, which I owe to my personal and professional character to refute. I shall not now undertake to relate the faults of one who has been my wife for nearly two years, during which time I have treated her with all the respect and consideration due to her, one who has been true to his marriage vows, to one whom he wished to remind worthy of his homage and esteem. I have taken the proper legal steps to dissolve the marriage relation between us, and she shall have every opportunity, in a court of law, to defend her character and refute my accusations. Since the beginning of my troubles, however, Mr. Bandman and others have been free with unsolicited testimony against me, for the purpose of injuring my standing in communities in which I am well and favorably known. Why this gentleman, above all others, should be the first to add crime to misfortune, is more than I can possibly surmise. I have befriended him on so many occasions, that the memory of all my charities cannot have been effaced in him, and a recollection of the least among them all might have been sufficient to have stayed the dagger in a heart not wholly prompted by an ungrateful heart. Not content with falsifying the record as to himself, he travels far out of his way, as if impelled by a spirit at war with every feeling which should actuate a man of honor, to relate transactions between myself and others with whom I have had professional connection. I do not think Mr. Hart's voluntary championship of the wrongs of others will be acceptable to those in whose behalf he takes up the cudgel against me. If I have wronged Mr. Emerson or any other person, let him or them be my accusers, but let them not select as their defender, one who cannot accuse me without acknowledging himself an ingrate. Of the many attempts to injure me professionally, I shall take notice of but one. It has been stated that I was forced to give up an engagement at the Dearborn Theatre, in Chicago. It is sufficient to answer to this that, before my recent misfortune, I had sold my interest in the business at the Dearborn, and in doing so had been obliged to sign a contract not to appear before a Chicago audience within five years. This certainly does not look as if anything had occurred to injure my popularity, or to endanger the pecuniary success of any engagement with me. I have engagements, and it is my determination to fulfil them. They commence at Cincinnati, on the 9th day of October, 1871, and I can assure all my friends that they will find no reason, in any future conduct of mine, to repeat the generous favor and patronage they have bestowed on me in the past.

Yours truly, BILLY MANNING.

THE ELEVENTH STREET OPERA HOUSE, Philadelphia, is now undergoing a process of remodelling and alteration, with a view to re-opening about the 25th of September, with a very strong minstrel troupe under the management of E. F. Dixey and Frank Moran. The new company will be known as Dixey & Moran's Minstrels. The former proprietors of this hall, Carncross, Dixey & Simpson, disposed of everything some time ago.

THE ARCH STREET OPERA HOUSE, Philadelphia, commences its fall and winter season on Monday evening, August 28th, with Simmons & Slocum's Minstrels, and in addition to the names of the company given in a previous issue, we must record the re-engagement of Billy Sweetnam, the popular eccentric comedian, and the first appearance with the troupe of Mr. J. C. Lacey, who is said to be the fortunate possessor of a very well cultivated and sweet tenor voice. Robert Frazer—who, in addition to his abilities as a pantomimist and comedian, unites abilities of no mean order as a scenic artist—has painted a very handsome scene for the first part. The programme will include an original sketch by E. N. Slocum, entitled, "Re-united; or, Altogether," in which Harry Lehr, Simmons and Slocum will appear and will conclude with a new Ethiopian burlesque to Coming from Point Breeze," in which the entire company will appear.

Circus.

WOOTTEN AND HAIGHT'S Empire City Circus will ship from St. John, N. B., to Boston, Mass., where they will perform September 9th, and after the evening's exhibition they will ship for Savannah, Ga., where they will perform on the 14th.

P. T. BARNUM'S MUSEUM, MENAGERIE AND CIRCUS exhibited in Troy, N. Y., August 21st. At the afternoon exhibition Mr. Barnum presented James L. Hutchinson, his agent for the sale of his autobiography, with an elegant gold medal appropriately engraved. On its face is inscribed:—"Presented to James L. Hutchinson as a token of esteem for the honesty, energy, gentlemanly bearing and correct habits observed by him while acting as my agent. P. T. Barnum, 1871." On the reverse, is engraved a book, encircling which is inscribed, "Integrity, temperance, truth always triumph." Mr. Barnum accompied the medal with an appropriate speech, to which Mr. Hutchinson fittingly responded. On the 23d they exhibited in Albany in opposition to Dan Rice's Paris Pavilion Circus to good business. They are billed to exhibit at Gloversville, 28th; Fort Plain, 29th; Little Falls, 30th; Utica, 31st; Rome, September 1st; Camden, 2d, and Oswego, 4th.

ROBINSON AND CO.'S CIRCUS gave exhibitions in Washington on August 21st, 22d, 23d and 24th, to very large audiences, and was a general satisfaction. The first afternoon performance was not witnessed by a crowded audience (in consequence of the state of the weather), but at night the canvas was densely packed. It was found necessary to put down extra seats, and even then many were obliged to stand. The General of the President's family was present, special seats having been reserved and festooned very handsomely with the national colors. The principal feature of the entertainment was the bareback riding of Mr. Robinson and Clarence. Both father and son have improved in that way since I last saw them at the Hippotheatron, in New York. Mr. Robinson rides more gracefully and fearlessly than ever, and, to show his ability as a horseman, he now does an act on a swift footed grey, and then, without leaving the circle, repeats the same astonishing feats on a different horse. Little Clarence is no longer in petticoats, but is now a fine looking little boy. He now does a bareback act on a pony in a manner to plainly show that he is certainly a chip of the old block. Frank Pastor's pad riding comes next. Shappee and Whitney are excellent gymnasts, and the Davenport brothers are remarkably clever in tumbling and acrobatic feats, and Burke, the clown, is very comical. The company travel by rail, and so do we pretend to give a gorgeous street procession, but have an outside feature in the shape of a balloon ascension, which is conducted on the hot air plan. The Cardiff giant, i. e., one of them, and a magician (not Prof. Anderson, although the bills say so) constitute the sideshow attractions. So wrote our correspondent on August 26th.

THE COMMONWEALTH CIRCUS is billed to exhibit one week at Quebec, Canada, commencing August 28th.

VAN AMBURGH & CO.'S CIRCUS AND MENAGERIE, Hyatt Frost, manager, is billed ahead as follows:—Lawrenceburgh, Ind., September 1st; Harrison, 2d; Brookville, 4th; Laurel City, 5th; Connersville, at the Agricultural Fair, 6th and 7th; Oxford, O., 8th; Mt. Pleasant, 9th; Cumminsville, 11th; Loveland, 12th, and Morrow, 13th. Business is reported good and the weather very dry and hot.

VAN AMBURGH & CO.'S GREAT GOLDEN MENAGERIE, H. Barnum, manager, is billed ahead as follows:—Madison, Wis., September 1st; Evansville, 2d; Janesville, 4th; White Water, 5th; Jefferson, 6th; Watertown, 7th; Oconomowa, 8th, and Wakeshaw, 9th. Since harvest time the business with this show has been good and the animals and horses are reported in fine condition.

SHELDENBURGH'S OPTICAL MENAGERIE AND CIRCUS, writes a correspondent on Aug. 23d, "made six stands in the state of Kentucky, from Aug. 16th until the 20th, and did an immense business. Prince Sadi d'Jalma, the man serpent, was attacked with fever and ague on the 20th, and is lying very ill at Georgetown, Ohio. Little Mary Brown's horse died recently and now the little equestrienne is riding another almost equal to her previous one, though instead of throwing somersaults on it she does them on the ground after the act is completed. They show at Portsmouth, Ohio, Aug. 26th, and at Parkersburgh, Western Virginia, about Sept. 7th."

WM. LA RUE, equestrian, bare back rider, etc., who does a carrying act with his infant son, can be engaged for the winter season. His address is care of this office.

QUITE A GATHERING OF CIRCUS PEOPLE assembled at Albany, N. Y., on August 22d, among them were:—P. T. Barnum, Avery Smith, E. C. Quick, Charles H. Castle, Dan Castello, W. C. Coup and Dan Rice.

THE LOWANDE BRAZILIAN FAMILY, equestrians, gymnasts, &c., consisting of Alexander, Clarinda, Martino, Abelardo and Natalio, at present with Adam Forepaugh's circus, are prepared to accept engagements for the winter. For further particulars, address as per advertisement.

L. B. LENT'S NEW YORK CIRCUS is to appear in Cincinnati on the old Buckeye Base Ball grounds for four days, commencing Monday, Sept. 4th.

ROGERS, SPRINGER & CO.'S CIRCUS AND MENAGERIE spread canvas in Peoria, Ill., on August 19th, and did a large business. Their street parade is very fine, the horses appear in splendid condition considering the amount of hard traveling they have done and the wagons look remarkably well; the Arabs, in their pyramids, tumbling and groupings elicited the wonder and admiration of all. They are a big card for the management. The trapeze performance was equal to the finest ever witnessed in this city. The collection of animals is remarkably good, the only lioness being as fine a specimen as we ever saw. Attached to the circus is the Pullman Brothers' Museum, which contains a rare collection of curiosities, among which is the bearded lady, a man without legs, and one born without arms; also, two small people, Major Bennit and Miss Nail. The elephant, Lalla Rookh, had to be left in this city on account of lameness. The company go south this winter, so wrote our correspondent on August 26th.

P. A. OLDEN'S MUSEUM AND CIRCUS performed at Freeport, Ill., Aug. 24th, and is billed ahead as follows:—Monroe, Wis., Aug. 28th; Warren, Ill., 29th; Shullsburg, Wis., 30th; Darlington, 31st; Mineral Point, Sept. 1st; Platteville, 2d; Lancaster, 4th; Bloomington, 5th; Prarie du Chien, 6th, and thence to La Crosse. Mme. Pontainbleau, gymnast, Fred Watson and wife, Joe Tinkham and wife have recently been added to this company.

HEMMINGS AND COOPER'S CIRCUS AND MENAGERIE exhibited in Henderson, Ky., Aug. 24th; Dixon, 26th, and is billed to perform in Madisonville, 29th.

W. W. NICHOLS, principal, scene and double horse rider, advertises that he can be engaged for the fall and winter season.

CIRCUS PROPRIETORS are referred to S. F. Cornwell's card elsewhere. He has a lot to let, in Philadelphia, centrally located.

CHARLES COVELLI has severed his connection with G. O. Grady's Circus, which he has managed for the past three years, and is now temporarily managing Alex. Robinson's New York Circus during the absence of the manager. On his return Mr. Covelli will return to Utica, N. Y., where his family resides.

HUNTWOOD'S PAVILION SHOW is billed to perform in Middlebury, Vt., Aug. 28th.

BARNUM'S CIRCUS, MUSEUM AND MENAGERIE performed in Schenectady, N. Y., August 24th. A correspondent writing on the 26th, says:—"Business was excellent, the receipts for the day being about $6,000. During the afternoon's entertainment Admiral Dot fell from an elevated platform and injured himself quite seriously, which will render him unable to exhibit for some time." The show is billed to exhibit at Gloversville, 28th; Fort Plain, 29th; Little Falls, 30th; Utica, 31st; Rome, Sept. 1st, and Camden, 2d.

Miscellaneous.

PROF. HENRI DE VERE, wizard, advertises that he can be engaged.

JOHN F. LIBBY, of Lowell, Mass., scenic artist, has been an invalid for more than three years past. During half of that time he was unable to get about without the aid of crutches. PRESS NOTICES.
THEATRE COMIQUE.—This establishment has had a rush every night lately, the principal attraction being Mlle Fontainebleau, the graceful gymnast. Her trapeze performance elicits the wildest applause, and nothing equalling it has ever been presented by a female in the city.—Bay City Advertiser, July 8th.
Older's Museum was in our city on Monday last. Its exhibition in Macon was a success. Perhaps the most attractive feature of the entertainment was the trapeze performance of Mlle Fontainebleau—a new artist from New York, who made her debut with this company here. We have seen male trapeze wonders in many of the large cities, but among them we have seen no more agile, courageous or successful one than Mlle Fontainebleau. She takes the place of Madam Sanyeah.—Macon Journal, Aug. 17th. 22-1t

AT PUBLIC SALE
On the Premises, on SATURDAY, September 16th, at 3 o'clock P. M.
This affords an opportunity but seldom offered to secure a very valuable property, situated on one of the best and broadest streets in the city, central to the different Railroad Depots and Street Cars, in a neighborhood where property is increasing in value every day, it offers a sure investment to the Capitalist, which will pay a handsome percentage at once, and daily increase in value.
The building is very substantially built, of brick, with handsome and imposing front, extending 98ft. on Liberty street, and running back 140ft. along Strawberry alley; the ground floor divided into four fine store rooms, with an entrance 12ft. wide, leading by an easy stairway to the Parquet, on the second floor.
The Auditorium is one of the neatest and best ventilated in the country, with seats for 850 persons in the Parquet and Dress Circle, covered with enameled cloth; 300 in the Family Circle, and 250 in the Gallery.
The Stage, 40x45ft., is provided with all the necessary machinery, traps, etc.; also 25 sett of Scenery complete, and seven dressing rooms underneath.
Very easy terms of sale will be made, and a large portion of the purchase money may remain on mortgage. 21-4t*

TO MY FRIENDS.
I am happy to announce myself alive and in good health. Have traveled far and near since last we met, but find no better spot to live or die in than America, our land of the free. I shall now return to my profession with renewed life and energy. Trusting you will give me over the same kind welcome as you so generously have done in days gone by. Your Humble Servant,

MISS MAJOR
